Steel Strike Chokes Off Vital Defense Production

Gen. Ike Gives Up $19,542 Job To Talk Politics

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON—(AP)— This is the day that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower lays aside his five-starred uniform and trades a spectacular military career for a chance to be president of the United States.

At his own request, the general is retiring without pay from the Army he has served for the past 37 years. And before nightfall he will be more the politician than the general—free to campaign actively if he wishes for the Republican presidential nomination.

Heading For Abilene

The day's program called for a last round of conferences, including a meeting with newsmen at the Pentagon and then candidate Eisenhower will head for Kansas to make his first public address before old hometown friends in Abilene.

Eisenhower had hoped to keep his return to Abilene "a Kansas affair"—but this was just a wistful sort of wishing, if he was serious. At least 50,000 of his admirers from all parts of the country are expected to flock to the little town of 5,800 population for a big welcome which also will be a sendoff for the general on the last phase of the pre-convention campaign for nominating votes.

President Truman didn't let the General get out of town without a word of praise for the job he did in building up Western Europe's defenses.

Decorated By President

In a White House ceremony yesterday, Truman pinned a fourth oak leaf cluster on the General's Distinguished Service medal. He called Eisenhower's job in Europe "a monumental achievement without historical peacetime precedent."

Eisenhower told the President he was "deeply touched and honored." Then he glanced at Mrs. Eisenhower and said: "I listened in vain for one name that should have been included—that of my wife."

Truman said with a smile: "I agree with you and I'll insert it if

Cavein Traps Five Half A Mile Deep In Ironwood Mine

IRONWOOD, Mich. — (AP) — Rescue workers cautiously burrowing ahead in search of five entombed miners today reported hearing faint tapping sounds from the pit.

The sounds raised hopes one or more of the men might still be alive but rescue crews said there was no positive proof the sound came from the miners.

The five men were trapped some 2,900 feet in the depths of the Penokee Iron Ore Mine yesterday afternoon when tons of earth and rock caved in on a sub-level above the mine's 29th or main level. Families and friends continue to keep a hopeful vigil at the mine in the outskirts of the city.

Rescue Hopes Dim

Theodore Nynan, Gogebic county mine inspector, expressed doubt that any would be found alive, "barring a miracle." But some miners said a solid rock formation located in the area of the cave-in might have protected the five from the crushing mass.

The missing men are Victor Cox, 51; Christopher Hocking, 46; Serafim Zacharzewski, 56, and Jorma Olkonen, 33, all of Ironwood, and Matt Krocker, 54, Bessemer, Mich. All but Olkonen are married.

Shifts of workers labored throughout the night at three separate rescue tunnels, mainly by hand—digging a few feet in th treacherous loose ground and rock, placing buttressing timbers into position, then digging some more. How far they had to tunnel was a grim and unanswerable question.

Eight Flee To Safety

The scene of the cave-in is 2,000 feet from the mine shaft which dives into the earth at a 65 degree angle.

Eight miners working in the cave-in area got out through an escape hatch. Only one of them, George Soderman of Ironwood, was hospitalized. He was treated for shock and bruises. One of the miners said, "We heard a loud crack; then there was a rush of air and dust and we made tracks.

Ironically, work at the mine was to have ceased last night, as did iron ore mining throughout Upper Michigan, because of the steel strike. The Penokee Mine is owned and operated by Republic Steel Corp. and the miners were to have gone out on strike.

South Korea's Assembly Quits

By STAN CARTER

PUSAN, Korea—(AP)—The South Korean national assembly ceased to function today. President Syngman Rhee was expected to dissolve it late today or tomorrow.

Fifty-two pro-Rhee assemblymen withdrew, saying they "could not continue" to work with legislators they considered "corrupt."

The action made it practically impossible for the 183-member body to carry on business. A quorum of 92 is required. Twelve members have been jailed since martial law was declared by Rhee May 24. Some 20 to 30 others are in hiding for fear they will be taken into custody.

After trying without success all morning to get a quorum, chairman P. H. Shinicky dismissed the assembly. There were 73 members present.

A source close to Rhee said the 77-year-old President definitely had decided to dissolve the assembly, "in accordance with the will of the people."

The source said the President has decided it is too late for a compromise with opposition assemblymen. He said Rhee has received thousands of petitions from provincial assemblies, city councils and individuals demanding that the assembly be dissolved.

Red Flags Fly Over Koje Again

KOJE ISLAND, Korea—(AP)—Unruly Communist prisoners of war today set up a new flagpole in their prison pen in place of one knocked down by their guards yesterday.

The U. N. commader said "it will not be there very long."

The Communist flag pole in compound 602 was smashed yesterday by a U. S. Patton tank ringed by infantrymen carrying bayonet-tipped rifles.

Tension in the hate-filled prison stockades remained high as the accidental discharge of a machinegun killed one POW and wounded another in compound 78. Prisoners refused to give up the body or permit camp officials to take the wounded man to a hospital.

Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, commander of the prison camps, expressed concern over the number of accidental shootings by Allied guards.

Two POWs were wounded yesterday. One was shot trying to escape. The other was shot by a South Korean officer, who was goaded by shouted POW insults.

Boatner has ordered the Communists to pull down Communist flags flying over their compounds. Several compounds openly defied the order.

Defiant Prisoners Wounded By Guards At Koje POW Camp

KOJE ISLAND, Korea—(AP)—American guards fired riot guns into a prisoner of war compound tonight, slightly wounding four North Korean prisoners defying orders.

Prisoners in compound 604 refused to remove clothing from the barbed wire fence obstructing the guards' view of the enclosure. The guards then opened fire with crippling shotgun blasts to drive the unruly POWs back from the fence.

Two of the prisoners were taken to a camp hospital for treatment. The other two were given first aid by fellow prisoners.

The shooting raised prisoner casualties for the past 24 hours to one dead and seven wounded. One prisoner was killed and another wounded by the accidental discharge of a guard's machinegun and two were wounded in the night in an escape attempt.

Fire Claims Life Of Old Nurse, 104

CHELTENHAM, England — (AP) —Esther Reade, at 104 one of the oldest women in Britain, died yesterday when an overturned oil stove set fire to a pile of papers in her lonely cottage.

Friends said that Miss Reade, a former nurse who once worked with Florence Nightingale, smoked 40 cigarettes a day and never missed her one shilling (14 cents) daily bet on the horses.

Hot GOP Races Watched Today In 3 Primaries

(By The Associated Press)

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, retiring from his army career in a bid for the presidency, told a news conference in Washington today he has always contended the dominant factor in any future war would be air power.

He said he has always worked for "air power and air force in every way it is possible."

This was in reply to a request for comment on statements by Senator Robert A. Taft—although the questioner didn't mention Taft by name—that U. S. air power has been deteriorating and that the decline began when Eisenhower was chief of staff.

Big Speech Wednesday

Eisenhower, still in uniform at the conference, asked that it be confined to what he has been doing as Allied commander in Europe. But the air power discussion was inevitably of political import since he and Taft are the leading candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

While saying air power would be dominant, the general said he wished that anyone who "finds that the ordinary foot soldier can be finally eliminated from war, I wish he would show me how to do it."

Eisenhower heads now for his sometown of Abilene, Kan., and a major political speech tomorrow as a civilian.

Primaries in three states and a convention in a fourth shared today's political schedule.

South Dakota Is Prize

In South Dakota and California, Republican and Democratic primaries alike were selecting presidential nominating delegates. Democratic delegates were being chosen in an Alabama primary and in a Maryland convention.

At first blush, the South Dakota balloting looked unimportant—only 14 Republican and eight Democratic delegates being elected to serve at next month's national con-

Wildcat Strike Cuts Off Jets

FARMINGDALE, N. Y.—(AP)—The Republic Aviation Corporation hoped today that wildcat strikers would return to work and allow resumption of production of jet planes for the Korean front.

The big aircraft plant halted all production yesterday afternoon when the wildcat strike, which started in the morning, interferred with operations.

A company announcement said the strike in its first day caused an estimated loss of 10 Thunderjet fighter-bombers for the nation's defense in Europe and Asia.

Grievance machinery, not wages, was at issue in the dispute which pitted the strikers against their union leaders in the AFL International Association of Machinists (IAM).

Republic said about half the 11,400 union production workers in the plant showed up for the day and night shifts. But these workers eventually were sent home.

Company hopes for a work resumption today were hinged on radio appeals last night by IAM officials that the wildcatters return to work at the big Long Island factory.

New Deputy Warden Takes Over Duties At Jackson Prison

JACKSON, Mich.— (AP) —The state prison of Southern Michigan received its newly appointed deputy warden Seymour J. Gilman today.

Gilman, named to succeed the late Ralph Benson, took over his duties in the course of the continuing adjustment of prison policies.

His No. 1 task is presumed to be the reconciling of differences between the custodial and inmate treatment departments.

Gilman came on the scene with the crowded penitentiary still in the process of transferring some convicts.

The prison population now is reported at 6,207. This is 274 less than at the time of the April 20-24 mutiny.

Red Riflemen Peck At Allies In Korea

SEOUL, Korea — (AP) — Eight groups of Chinese riflemen pecked at United Nations defenses along a five mile sector of the Korea western front in predawn darkness today.

A U. S. Eighth Army staff officer said Allied artillery beat back all probes of the groups ranging in size up to 100 men.

The staff officer made no estimate of Red casualties or the possible significance of the concentrated probing attacks.

On the eastern front Allied troops west of the Satae valley reported 1,000 rounds of Red artillery and mortar shells fell on their positions.

The staff officer said that in May the Eighth Army inflicted 10,501 casualties on the Reds, including 5,012 killed.

Far East Naval headquarters in Tokyo reported that in the week ended Monday, U. N. Naval units inflicted the following damage to Communist forces:

Destroyed or damaged 200 rail cars, 164 trucks, 429 buildings, 94 bridges and 55 gun positions.

The Navy said 901 Reds were casualties of Allied guns. Twenty-seven Reds were captured in Sampans.

The Navy said carrier-based planes inflicted most of the damage. The American carriers Philippine Sea, Boxer and Valley Forge are operating on the east coast and the American carrier Bataan and the British carrier Ocean on the West Coast.

Carpenters End 25-Day Strike

DETROIT—(AP)—Members of 11 Detroit area AFL Carpenters Unions vote today on the ratification of a settlement ending a 25-day strike of construction workers in five southeastern Michigan counties.

The settlement between the striking Corpenters' Unions and Detroit Area Contracts Associations was announced yesterday by George E. Bowles, chairman of the State Labor Mediation Board.

In addition to the union ratification, the settlement calling for an immediate eight cent an hour wage increase to 15,000 carpenters must be approved by the construction industry Stabilization Board, a division of the Wage Stabilization Board.

Verne Lough, secretary-treasurer of the Carpenters District Council here, said union members would vote in the settlement at local union halls. He expressed confidence the carpenters would accept the settlement which grants an over all 18-cents an hour pay increase.

In addition to the immediate eight cent hourly wage increase, the agreement calls for another five cents an hour pay hike effective Sept. 1, and a fice cent boost in health and welfare benefits effective Oct. 1.

Three Fined $2,130 For Shooting Cows On Lake Ann Farm

BEULAH, Mich.—(AP)— Circuit Judge Howard Campbell here yesterday assessed three men convicted of shooting cows, fines and costs totaling $2,130.

Paul Schaub, of Cedar, was assessed $560; and Jerry and Paul Amore, both of Lake Leelanau, both received court imposed penalties of $560 after they admitted shooting the cows last week on the farm of N. R. Miller at Lake Ann.

Schaub was ordered to pay an additional $450 to Miller for the loss of the cows.

Judge Campbell, in imposing the fines, said he wished to discourage "cattle rustling" in Benzie county.

County Valuations Okayed Without Kick

LANSING—(AP)—For the first time in history the state tax commission's recommendations on the state's equalized valuations were approved yesterday without a complaint by any county.

The state board of equalization accepted the commission's recommendations and set the state's equalized value at $13,636,000,000—an increase of $850,000,000 over last year.

The equalization of county assessed valuations is used chiefly in computing state aid payments to counties and becomes the county tax base if adopted after an appeal to the state.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. George Meader (R-Mich) announced today he will seek Republican renominaation to a second term in Congress. A lawyer and a resident of Ann Arbor, Mich., he served as counsel to several Senate investigaating committees before his election to the House in 1950.

British Get Revenge On Soviets; Barricade Berlin Radio Station

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

BERLIN—(AP)—British military police threw a barbed wire barricade around Russian-operated radio Berlin today and besieged that Communist island inside the western section of the divided city.

The surprise dawn action caught a guard of about 20 Russian Tommy-gunners inside the big red brick building in the middle of the British sector of the former German capital.

Reds Sit Tight

British and German police on guard around the barbed wire barricade announced to both Russian and German civilian station personnel that anybody inside the building could come out but that nobody would be allowed back in.

The British troops around the station were issued extra ammunition and ordered to "meet force with force" if anyone tried to lift the siege. The Russians did not attempt to make their customary morning change of the guard, arousing belief that the Red squad inside had orders to sit tight, for the present anyway.

The British action—taken after consultation with American and French occupation officials — apparently was in retaliation for Communist seizure of several small areas on the fringes of West Berlin which lie just inside the Russian occupation zone but had been administered by the West.

More Road Blocks

The Reds grabbed these little areas during the weekend for incorporation or evacuation in order to create "security belts" with which they are sealing off Free Berlin from the surrounding Russian occupation zone.

Many of the onlokers expressed glee that the Allies finally had moved against the Red radio. West Berliners long have hated it, especially when it continued its outpourings during the 1948-49 blockade with which the Russians tried to starve the western-held part of the city.

Communist police also were busy during the night —erecting more road blocks to seal off West Berlin from the surrounding Rus-

Legislators Make Their Last Stand To Balance Budget

LANSING — (AP) — A new attempt to balance the state budget with an industrial processing tax was shaping up in the House today.

The plan was discussed yesterday by a group of Republican representatives who said they would present it as "our last stand."

The conference preceded tonight's reconvening of the legislature after a long Memorial Day recess.

Nuts To Williams

Rep. Lewis G. Christman (R-Ann Arbor), who was taking the lead in the move, declared that "if Williams says 'no' to this, then 'nuts' to him."

The proposed two per cent tax would be levied on all new machinery and materials used in Michigan's great manufacturing industry.

Christman, vice-chairman of the House taxation committee, estimated it would produce about $20,000,000 a year. This would more than replace the general fund revenue cut out of the Republican budget balance tax package by the governor's vetoes of a used car transfer tax and a three per cent "service" charge to replace the sales tax on liquor.

Governor Williams has long sought a corporation profits tax, not only to balance the current budget but to make up the accumulated deficit.

Senate Gives Up

Christman said the processing tax would not work a hardship on manufacturers since they are allowed to write off the cost of new equipment over a three-year period for federal income tax purposes.

The state tax, Christman said, would simply be added to the total cost of new equipment and be eventually deducted from federal taxes.

The proposed processing tax passed the Senate in 1951, but was defeated in the House, Christman reported, because of pressure from manufacturers.

"The Senate now has apparently given up on trying to balance the next budget," Christman said, "but some of us in the House feel differently. We think we ought to keep trying, and then if we can't balance the budget despite all our efforts, the blame will rest squarely with the governor."

Sea-Going Jeep Sold In Detroit

DETROIT—(AP)— John Ottinger saw his dream of "a sea-going jeep shipping service" cracked by an auctioneers hammer yesterday.

"The Beatrice Ottinger," which John designed, was sold by federal court order to satisfy payment of a $11,200 loan Ottinger obtained from the reconstruction finance corporation to finance the building.

The craft was bought by Jack Lyons, of Detroit, president of the Lyons Navigation Co., for the exact amount of the loan.

Ottinger built the boat with an idea of operating it as a miniature lakes freighter. He constructed it a few inches short of 6 feet so it would pass as a motorboat and legally could be operated by himself and a crew of two. But the coast guard ruled the ship's cargo space was too large for it to qualify as a motorboat and decreed it must have a crew of at least nine.

Ottinger had built rooms for only three crewmen and said nine would eat up profits anyway. He had planned to make ports too shallow for ordinary lake freighters.

The RFC finally got a court order directing sale of the boat to satisfy payment of the loan.

Lyons said he planned to use the ship in logging and lumber carrying on the upper Great Lakes and expected to work out arrangements for a 9-man crew.

President Has Three Choices For Next Move

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A bitter, all-out strike shut the vast steel industry down tight today and the White House weighed its next peace move in the six-month-old union-management struggle.

Leaders of both the industry and the striking CIO Steelworkers Union suggested renewed contracts talks but neither side proposed a date for negotiations.

Unless the contenders get together soon, it was believed President Truman would take some new action to end the strike—because the walkout is costing the nation and its crucial defense effort 300,000 tons of steel daily.

May Use T-H Act

Truman had about three choices: (1) Sit tight a while to see what the industry and union may accomplish on their own, (2) invoke the Taft-Hartley law's 80-day court injunction provisions against a continued strike, or (3) ask Congress for special legislatioon to deal with the situation.

A high administration official said those were the alternatives being debated at the White House. He expressed a personal opinion to a reporter that Truman would invoke the T-H act, as many members of Congress have demanded. Other Truman advisers reportedly were counselling against this, favoring the appeal to Congress.

Truman is likely to be wary of his next move, in any event, after being rebuffed on his seizure step. The Supreme Court ruled 6-3 yesterday that the President's April 8 order taking over the steel industry was unconstitutional.

Bargaining Resumed

Truman remained silent on the high court's decision, but Congress members generally applauded it, with some exceptions. Sen. Lehman (D-Lib-NY) for example, viewed the ruling with dismay, saying:

"Congress must act, without a moment's unnecessary delay, to pass essential legislation to give the President the power he needs, this is no time for politics."

The workers began streaming out of the steel mills across the nation within minutes after the high court acted, even before getting formal strike instructions from Philip Murray, head of the CIO and the Steelworkers Union.

It was the Steelworkers' second strike since their contract expired last Jan. 1. The first walkout lasted only three days, April 29-May 1.

Truman may first try to persuade the industry and union to hold new peace talks. John A. Stephens, U. S. Steel Co. vice president and a

Finland Movie Shown For MRA

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich — (AP) — "The Answer" a unique motion picture, produced in Finland, was previewed here last night by some 900 delegates attending the world assembly for moral rearmaament.

The film, with background music donated by Sebelius, was introduced by Finnish producer and leading actor, Viljo Lampela.

Lampela said the motion picture was made to "offer the right answer for the Finnish nation to the nations of the world."

"It dramatizes the answer of the moral factors in men to the pressures Finland has recently felt," Lampela said, "when the nation fell apart and was taken over, or stuck together and lived."

He described Finland as being in the best position to give the answer because it "is the only nation able to speak both to east and west, and the only defeated nation now wholly free with reparations paid."

Yesterday, delegates heard University of Chicago professor and nuclear scientist R. J. Moon, apologize to a 48-man Japanese delegation for the atom-bombing of Japan during the last war.

School Recall Issue Debated

The issue of the recall of four members of the Baldwin township school board will be presented to the state department of public instruction as a result of last night's meeting of the board in Perkins.

School board trustees acquiesced to Supt. Leo Godin's request that he consult Clair Taylor, assistant superintendent of public instruction in Lansing, on the proper method of filing the petitions calling for the unseating of four of five members of the board.

Anticipated action on the petitions was not begun at last night's meeting which was attended by approximately 25 township residents.

Seek To Recall Four

The dispute over the recall petitions began when the four members involved, Louis Pamperin, Carl Branstrom Jr., Floyd C. Fuhriman and N. J. Sharkey, maintained that the four petitions carrying the signatures of at least 141 persons each, were improperly submitted. They contend that the petitions should be filed with the township clerk.

In an attempt to resolve the conflict, Supt. Godin last night asked the approval of the board to receive the judgment of the state department of public instruction.

Referring to the wording of the petition that the recall was being asked because the administration of the named trustees is "detrimental to the general welfare of (the) school district," Fuhriman asked of Godin "What can you prove against us? State your reasons in the Daily Press why you want to recall us."

To Godin's counter-question that Fuhriman tell him what good he and the board has done for the school, Fuhriman replied, "We're saving money for the school."

Godin—"I guess so. We did well in our hot lunch project, didn't we?"

(The hot lunch program in Perkins has in some months been operated at a loss, the deficit having to be made up out of township funds.)

Godin Vs. School Board

Godin continued the discussion with "I'm spearheading this petition because I think you (the board members) are trying to get my job."

Whereupon Branstrom rose and declared that the board had decided not to take up discusson of the petiton conflict in the meeting but that Godin had made the gesture to reopen the dispute.

A member of the audience, Mrs. Al Hutte, was then recognized by President Pamperin in receipt of comment from the attendees. Mrs. Hutte, a teacher residing in the county, asked why her application for a teaching position had been denied by the board who instead approved the application of an outside teacher while the supply of instructors within the area was not exhausted.

The meeting was adjourned by the members while Mrs. Hutte continued addressing the board.

An election to fill the office of Emil Nordeen, a board member not involved in the recall petitions, will be held Monday, June 9. Nordeen will seek re-election. Edwin Johnson has also been announced as a candidate for the office.

The next meeting of the board will be June 19.

U. P. Teachers Will Hear Robert Vogeler

Robert A. Vogeler, first American business man to fall victim to the mockery of Communist "justice", will speak before the teachers of the Upper Peninsula at the Michigan Education Association Region 7 conference to be held Oct. 2, 1952, at Marquette.

The announcement was made today by Allan Mathison, chairman of MEA Region 7.

Vogeler was imprisoned for 17 months behind the Iron Curtain. An assistant vice president of International Telephone & Telegraph Co., he was arrested and went on trial in Communist-dominated Hungary, charged with "espionage, sabotage and conspiracy against the Hungarian government."

He was sumarily arrested in November, 1949, and held incommunicado in secret police headquarters in Budapest. In a cell whose floor was covered with several inches of water, Vogeler was subjected to constant pressures, psychological and physical. Brought to trial, he "confessed" and was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

Only after strong representations on the part of the United States government was Vogeler released to return home. Today, recovered from his experiences in a Communist prison, he is ready to make lecture tours to "make every American realize that what happened to me could happen to anyone."

Yelland Talks On Alcoholism

Harland J. Yelland, Escanaba attorney and a member of the governor's commission on alcoholism, told the Escanaba Lions Club Monday night that the problem of alcoholism and alcoholics is a serious one in this country, costing an estimated billion dollars per year in lost wages, hospitalization etc.

Yelland reported that several approaches to the problem of treating alcoholics are being made, including hospitalization, but that the most promising results have been attained by Alcoholics Anonymous, an organization devoted to the rehabilitation of alcoholics.

'Alcoholism is a disease and should be treated as such," Yelland said. He emphasized that not all heavy drinkers are alcoholics. A person who is not an alcoholic can shake off the toxic effects of alcohol ten times faster than an alcoholic, he said.

Only Cure—Abstinence

Yelland told the Lions Club that an alcoholic has no tolerance of intoxicating beverages and that he cannot ever be a "social drinker." Just one drink, even after long periods of abstinence, will start a spree that will inevitably end with complete drunkenness.

"Alcoholism knows no race, no creed, no sex, no age limits and no economic status. Neither is alcoholism a result of a lack of will power," Yelland said. "On the contrary, alcoholics usually demonstrate great will power by the extreme measures he will take to secure alcohol when his body craves it."

Yelland said that there is only one successful course of action for an alcoholic and that is complete abstinence—permanently.

"You would never think of giving sugar to a diabetic. Why give alcohol to an alcoholic?" Yelland queried.

Approved by Wets, Drys

The speaker emphasized that the governor's commission on alcoholism does not concern itself either for or against the question of legal sale of alcoholic beverages.

"Ours is the only agency dealing with the problem of alcoholism which has the support of both the west and the drys," he said.

The help given to alcoholics by Alcoholics Anonymous is beneficial only when the alcoholic admits his illness and is receptive to the kind of cooperative assistance provided for others with like illness, Yelland said. The results attained by this voluntary organization have been remarkable, he reported.

"It is not difficult to determine whether a person is an alcoholic or not. For one thing, the drinking habits of an alcoholic always get progressively worse. If a person likes to drink alone, craves a drink in the morning or 'drinks by the clock', he has the symptons of alcoholism."

Blue Phantom Sniper Shoots At Motorists On Illinois Highway

ST. LOUIS— (AP) —Police here were called in on the case of the blue phantom sniper who is reported to have fired at motorists from a speeding automobile on an Illinois highway.

Two motorists reported they were fired on Thursday on Route 66 near Joliet, Ill. One William Eirthisel of Plainfield, was wounded in the hand.

He said the bullet was fired from a 1950 blue Ford occupied by four men. The shooting occurred as the car passed Eirthiesel about 18 miles north of Joliet.

The bullet was sent here for comparison with one found in downtown St. Louis Wednesday after a Union Electric Co. executive was fatally wounded as he prepared to enter his parked automobile.

The man was Raymond C. Raack. A spent .38 caliber bullet was found in the street a few yards from his car.

Daniel Schonar of Aurora said a man driving a blue car fired at him as the two cars sped along Highway 66 south of Plainfield, near Chicago.

The bullet smashed the small vent window as Schonar ducked his head.

Council Studies Escanaba Steam Utility Future

Meeting in special session to adopt utility rate ordinances for the coming fiscal year, Escanaba City Council yesterday agreed to a study of the steam utility and consultation with the 90 steam customers.

Factors favorable and unfavorable in connection with the steam utility will be considered by the Council in arriving at a policy for the future of the central steam heating plant.

This year the steam utility will pay its own way, and there will be no out-of-pocket loss to the city for the first time in years. The improved financial picture for the steam utility was credited by City Manager A. V. Aronson to more efficient management, for which he praised John Clark, superintendent of the steam and gas department.

Point Of Decision

The steam utility will break even, however, if the city does not have to charge interest on investment and taxes against it. Such charges are provided for in city charter, but the amount of the charges is not specified.

City Manager Aronson told the Council that although the steam utility has the capacity for more than the present number of customers, it is difficult to obtain new customers because they cannot be assured the utility will be in operation more than a couple years.

The Council must decide whether the steam plant will continue to be operated. To arrive at this decision the Council is planning a meeting with the present customers, plus a review of all of the factors in connection with the operation of the plant.

Rates Not Adequate

In adopting the rate ordinance for the steam utility, the Council indicated that it did not expect the new rate to keep the utility out of the red in the year ahead.

It will give the Council time to consider all phases of the problem, including higher costs, loss of revenue in removal of the gas plant to a new location; and the possibility of increased revenue through electric generation at the steam plant, and the gaining of additional customers.

Elimination of private heating plants in the downtown area makes for a cleaner city, the city manager pointed out.

But the new rate ordinance, although it will advance the base rate seven cents from $1.56 to $1.63 minimum per 1,000 pounds of steam, will cover only increased production costs and will not be sufficient to give the utility a profit.

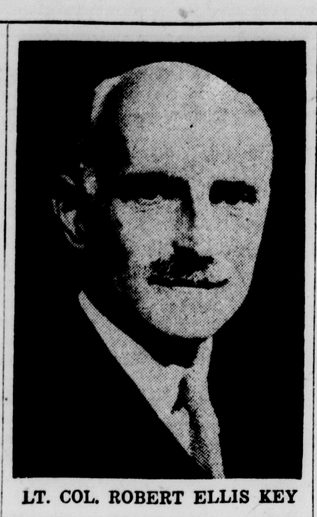

Other Rates Set

An increase in the steam heating rate that would place the cost above other forms of heating would probably result in a loss of customers, some of the councilmen believe.

Second reading and adoption were also given other utility rate ordinances for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The gas, water, and electric rates are virtually unchanged from those in effect at the present time.

Because the city's new propane gas plant will deliver a fuel with higher BTU there is a change in the base rate from that of the present manufactured gas. But the customer will receive proportionately the same heating service for the same price as now charged.

The change to the new propane gas is expected to be made about July 1.

Advises Care In Keeping Cattle From Lead Paint

Paint which is peeling off farm buildings and fences is just as poisonous as fresh paint if they both contain lead, cautions J. L. Heirman, county agricultural agent.

C. J. Little, Michigan State College extension dairyman for the Upper Peninsula, reminds farmers that cattle are often poisoned when they lick fresh lead paint from newly painted surfaces. They can also be poisoned when they chip off loose paint with their teeth or eat chips that have fallen to the ground.

If paint is peeling from a surface, the safe thing to do is keep cattle away from it until the loose paint is removed and disposed of.

It is safest to use non-lead, non-poisonous paint.

Poisoning from lead acts quickly, Little says, but many deaths can be prevented if a veterinarian treats the animal immediately.

As an extra precaution, Heirman advises against throwing empty paint buckets or old batteries into barnyards or pastures. Livestock licking the paint bucket or eating the lead plates in the battery may soon get enough lead to kill them.

John Novak Will Command Legion

Jack Novak was elected commander of Cloverland Post 82, Escanaba, at the annual election of officers last night. He succeeds Bob Olsen, the retiring commander.

Leo Alperovitz will succeed Bill Butler as Post adjutant.

Name Committeemen

Other officers chosen at the election yesterday were, chaplain, Archie Wood; publicity officer, Bob Olsen; finance officer, Elmer Bonifas; service officer, C. Elmer Olson; sergeant at arms, Herman Mielke; historian, C. W. Vadnais.

Various committee vacancies were also filled by election yesterday. Robert Seidel, Pete Short, Jim Harvey, Edward Olsen, and Robert Gannon were selected to serve on the house committee.

The new real estate committee includes Nicholas Chapekis, Arthur Anderson, C. W. Vadnais, John Peltier, and Dr. C. J. Corcoran.

Inland Stone Workers Strike

MANISTIQUE — The Inland Lime and Stone Company of Manistique, subsidiary of the Inland Steel Company, was closed by a strike of its union employes, effective at eight o'clock this morning.

Charles Burley, president of Local 4302, United Steel Workers, served the company at 6:30 p. m. Monday notice of the union's intention to strike.

Company buses this morning picked up about 60 men on the night shift at the conclusion of the shift.

Office and supervisory officials remained on the job and A. W. Heitman, general superintendent, reported that there has been no picketing of the plant thus far. About 390 men are affected by the strike.

The strike is an outgrowth of the Supreme Court decision invalidating the presidential seizure of the steel industry.

Court Decision In Steel Case Protects American Democracy

THE cause of freedom has been benefitted by the decision of the United States Supreme Court that President Truman lacked authority to seize the nation's steel industry.

It is, of course, regrettable that as a result of the Court's decision, the steel workers have called a nationwide strike. The steel that will not be produced while the mills are idle is steel that is needed for both our civilian economy and for our expanding rearmament program.

Nevertheless, we believe that despite the unhappy aspects of the strike, the American people are better off as a result of the Supreme Court decision than if the Court had upheld the steel seizure. The Court's ruling, in effect prevents presidential dictatorship in this country and no matter how badly we may be hurt by the lack of steel, it can not be as bad as if we opened the door to a destruction of our way of life.

We do not say nor do we believe that President Truman desires dictatorship. Actually, the President is nearing the end of his term of office and he is not a candidate for reelection. He could not possibly establish a dictatorship at this late stage of his term, even if he wanted to do so.

However, the principle involved in this issue is one of tremendous public importance. If the Court had upheld the steel seizure, even though there is no constitutional grant of power to the president nor congressional approval, then we would have the makings of presidential dictatorship.

The inherent rights of the executive office, to which Mr. Truman has referred from time to time, are imaginative rights. They simply do not exist. The President's rights are defined in the Constitution. He can assume no rights beyond those specifically granted to the office under the Constitution.

If the viewpoint of Mr. Truman had prevailed, it would have provided the legal basis for grabs of power by succeeding Presidents that would have made a mockery of our entire democratic system. Individual rights as we know them would be subject to the whims and fancies of whomever may be occupying the presidential office.

A way will be found to settle the steel strike. There can be little doubt of that. If necessary, specific authority can be granted by Congress to the president for seizure of the steel mills. We doubt, however, that it will be necessary to do so now that the real issue in the dispute has been settled by the Supreme Court.

Churchill Indecision Harmful To Britain

ONE of the sadder aspects of the current world scene has been the failure of Winston Churchill's Conservative government to make any real headway against Britain's host of problems.

Dispatches from London paint a picture of gloom among voters and high government and party officials alike. The recent sequence of Labor Party victories in local elections has done nothing to dispel the mood.

The London Economist, one of several publications normally sympathetic to Churchill but now critical, recently summed up the situation:

"This is an indecisive government, and indecisiveness is the one quality that could be fatal . . . When one asks where the blame for lack of decision is to be found, the only possible answer is to point to 10 Downing Street."

Perhaps the most unusual thing is the readiness with which so many key Conservatives admit their failure. The tough British economic dilemma is really no nearer solution than when they took office last October.

Britain's problems are so deep-rooted that no sensible person looked for miracles. But seemingly there has been less action than under the often-bewildered Labor regime.

Britons today are debating whether Churchill is a suitable leader for these times. Apparently the personal methods of governing he used so well in World War II are not particularly adapted to the present tortured period of half war-half peace. The grand assurance he brought to Britain's war efforts eludes him in today's tangle of troubles. Possibly his age—78—plays a part in this indecision.

It may be too early to pronounce a verdict upon Churchill, but some among his friendliest critics suggest that by nature he was meant for war leadership and no other. They argue that he is at home with the imperatives of war, with blacks and whites, but not with the shades of gray which baffle the world statesman everywhere in 1952.

However this may be, Churchill obviously has no intention of calling a new election soon or even of handing over the reins to foreign Secretary Eden, his most likely successor. Now and then a rumor bobs up that he might yield the premiership after Queen Elizabeth II is crowned next June.

The 1951 Conservative campaign sounded promising notes. There were to be a revitalized capitalism, with new stress on productivity and modernized plants, an easing of the austerity, the plague of controls that has gripped British life continuously since 1939 and a clearer, more courageous foreign policy flavored with the old Churchillian gusto.

Yet austerity is more firmly fastened on Britain than ever, and hardly a start has been made toward the other goals.

UNCLE EF

Arch Nearbrite says that White House television tour certainly qualified President Truman for two jobs if he needs one of them in the future. He might be either a museum guide or a piano tuner.

HIGHWAY INSURANCE
(Christian Science Monitor)

Compulsory automobile insurance has a great deal to be said for it, for financial protection both of accident victims and of drivers. But as motorists in Massachusetts know, it is extremely expensive.

Rates here are the highest in the Union, not only because of the extent of claims covered but also because the law apparently has encouraged fraudulent claims and a great liberality on the part of juries with insurance companies' (and hence indirectly with automobile owners') money.

New Jersey has a system which may provide a better answer to the need which compulsory liability insurance was invoked to cover. Governor Driscoll there has just signed an act to set up a fund from which to compensate accident victims not only where the offending driver is financially irresponsible but also in the case of hit-and-run injuries, where compulsory insurance is no help if the victim cannot find the driver to sue.

The fund will be built up by a small percentage of the insurance premiums collected and by an added registration fee of $1 from insured drivers or $3 from uninsured drivers. Other legislation will increase the incentives to carry insurance under the New Jersey financial responsibility law.

Possibly the costs of the New Jersey plan will turn out to be not greatly unlike those in Massachusetts. But there is a prospect that it may accomplish even more than compulsory insurance in assuring compensation to all highway traffic victims and may do so at less cost. Its operation is bound to be watched and examined with interest.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Inside facts in the continuing prisoner crisis on Koje Island are not too mysterious. First they boil down to the natural desire of U. S. military men to handle prisoners with as little manpower as possible.

This has always been American policy. The best U. S. troops are saved for the front.

As a result, South Koreans were largely used for policing Koje Island. They operated under a relative handful of Americans, and, since it was impossible to escape from the island, nobody worried very much about what happened, including the fact that there was considerable fraternization between South Korean guards and South Korean prisoners. In fact, South Korean guards carried messages, clothing, and supplies back and forth to the mainland.

The situation did not get serious on Koje Island until the United Nations command began screening prisoners in an effort to establish which wanted to return to the Communists, and which wanted to remain in South Korea.

At this point U. N. officers struck a hard core of Communists prisoners who objected to screening. However, the American command simply detoured this hard core, segregating them in compound 67, and went on to prisoners who were easier to deal with.

COMMUNIST STRATEGY

There's a strong suspicion that, at about this time, over-all riots. It's believed this policy was inaugurated just after the Communists learned how many of their troops did not want to return. Red Korean negotiators needed a bargaining point, and undoubtedly smuggled word onto Koje Island to their trusted Communist leaders to start revolts which would make the world believe that most of the prisoners on Koje were Communists and that the U. N. was lying when it announced that most of the prisoners did not want to return.

Chief fault of American officers was in letting things drift. The first trouble arose not between the prisoners and American troops but between Communists and non-Communists when tough Commie organizers browbeat, tortured, and murdered non-Communist prisoners. The latter then rioted against the Communists, and American officers at that time failed to use a strong hand. They let the Communist leaders get away with it. From this point on, conditions drifted from bad to worse.

Another trouble is that this is probably the first occasion when an American army has had to deal with politically minded troops. Hitherto the U. S. Army has handled huge blocs of prisoners such as the Germans in the recent war with few guards and no trouble. This was because the Germans at that time were not politically indoctrinated, also were tired of fighting.

FLORIDA BONANZA

Florida's enraged Gov. Fuller Warren has made national headlines rampaging up and down the state, braying like a bull moose against the Senate Crime Committee. But behind all his bluff and bluster is a sordid story of underworld ties that is only half told. Because it had to cover a lot of other states, the Kefauver committee let Warren off easy.

The column has now uncovered additional facts that ought to give the Florida Legislature all the excuse it needs to impeach the chief executive. Here is the none too pleasant story:

1. Under Florida law, Governor Warren swore, in an affidavit, that the total contributions to his gubernatorial campaign in 1948 totaled only $8,825. Yet William H. Johnston, Louis E. Wolfson, and C. V. Griffin testified under oath that their contributions to Warren in 1948 exceeded $400,000. Section 102.62 of the lorida statutes at that time limited the total contributions to a governor's campaign to $15,000.

2. William Johnston, who alone admitted donating over $100,000 to Warren's campaign, was the known boss of four Florida dog-racing tracks and an old-time associate of such Chicago hoodlums as John Patton and Frank "The Enforcer" Nitti. Regular pay-offs from Johnston's bank account in the Barnett National bank in Jacksonville went to Patton's relatives, and Johnston was sending as much as $30,000 at a time to invest in such gambling enterprises as the Chicago Downs Association, whose president, I. S. Weidrick, is a convicted larcenist.

Italians Await 'Moving Day' To New Homes Built With U. S. Aid

By NEA Foreign Service

ROME, Italy—(NEA)—For five heart - breaking years, as they climbed the 100 broken steps leading from a dank, lightless street to their cramped living quarters in an attic, the 16 members of the Preziosis family zealously cherished a dream.

This Spring, thanks to aid from America, that seemingly hopeless dream—the day when they could move into a new and livable apartment—has come true.

In the shadow of Rome's old, weathered walls, in a spot near the famous church of "Saint Paul Outside the Walls," is a new, 13-building government housing project consisting of 450 modern, three to five room flats.

* * *

Among the first to move into one of these flats were the Preziosis—Domenico, his wife and 14 children — who are typical of the thousands left homeless and poverty-stricken by the war.

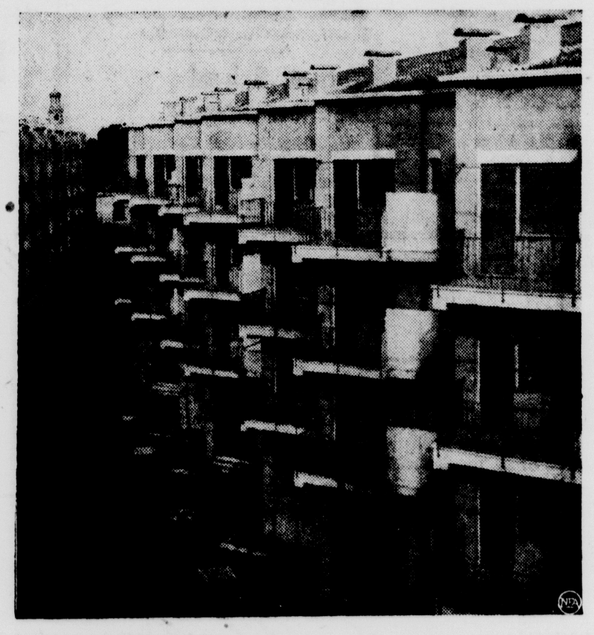

Although their old quarters in the attic were anything but luxurious, the Preziosis were among the fortunate. The lack of housing has been so bad that thousands of other families have been forced to live in caves, cellars, garrets, barracks and garages — anywhere they could find space.

Those lucky enough to find houses are packed together four and five to a room.

* * *

The government project into which the Preziosis have moved is part of a seven-year program. It began in 1950 when Marshall Plan counterpart funds—foreign currency deposited by the Italian government to match dollar aid granted by the ECA — became available for the purchase of sites and construction of buildings.

Since then, nearly 80,000 buildings have been completed and the equivalent of $330 million in Italian lire has been spent from counterpart funds and government sources.

NEW APARTMENTS in Rome, built with U. S. aid, will take families out of huts, caves and slum dwellings they have been forced to live in during Italy's post-war housing stortage.

More than 4000 communities have profited by the program, which is aimed primarily to benefit low-income workers' families.

* * *

Each Spring, there are more vacancies in the underground and hole-in-the-wall dwellings of the city's war victims. Like the Preziosis, whose only view at their old home was of smoke-blackened chimneys and rooftops, these people now occupy light, cheerful apartments with sanitation facilities, a modern kitchen and sun balcony, and spacious lawns for their children to play on.

The American aid which fostered the program came originally under the Marshall Plan. It is being continued under the Marshall Plan's successor, the Mutual Security Agency, and the Italian government is readily taking advantage of it.

Already, hundreds of families left out this time are looking forward to next Spring, when maybe they'll have a "Moving Day," too.

Good Evening...

ORCHID LAND—Michigan has a large number of rare and beautiful orchids growing wild in the northern sections of the state—but they are protected by law and not to be picked or offered for sale.

Most people believe orchids grow only n the tropical regions. While it is true that species with the largest and most colorful blooms are found in the tropics, many varieties—some very rare—will be found growing wild in Michigan swamps and lowlands.

Unlike the expensive blossoms raised in hothouses (species chiefly from tropical America, India and Australia) the Michigan orchids are hardy and if unmolested will continue to beautify the woods through the months of late May, June and July.

Altogether there are more than 6,000 species in the orchid family; 146 orchids are native to the United States and Canada; and about 50 are found in Michigan.

* * *

OF MANY KINDS—Some of the orchids found in Michigan are relatively well known. Others are so rare that botanists have but one or two reports of their existence in the state.

Best known are the Lady's Slippers, of which six species are found in Michigan. This flower is also known variously as moccasin flower, whip-poorwill shoes, squirrel shoes. It is found from the Kewe[illegible]w Peninsula to the southern state line.

Of this family the Showy Orchid is the most beautiful—or at least it has the largest flower. Perhaps because it is most likely to be picked (the fate befalling any attractive blossom) the Showy Orchid has a hairy stem that will poison and irritate the hands if it is touched. The poisoning is similar to that of poison ivy.

Picking any of the orchids will in most cases cause the root to die, for the leaves are attached to the flower stem and with the leaves gone the root can not be nourished.

* * *

RAREST OF ALL—Of the Lady's Slippers the Ram's Head is the rarest of Michigan's wild orchids.

It is found only in the Great Lakes region and blooms in May among the moist, cool evergreens.

Almost equally rare is the Calypso, which has a wider range but is seldom seen by the amateur botanist. Both the Ram's Head and Calypso have small flowers compared to the Showy Orchid.

* * *

AND NOT SO RARE—There are many varieties of Orchids in addition to the generally recognized Lady's Slippers.

Most of the others have smaller flowers and many grow in spiraled clusters on rather tall stems. Because they are so unlike the Lady's Slipper in appearance, many persons seeing them would never know they belong to the Orchid family.

Among these is the tall white Bog Orchids, which I have seen growing in the shallow water of Portage Bay near Portage Point south of Escanaba. It blooms in June and July. The flowers have a clove-like fragrance.

And in marshy ground near the mouth of Puffy Creek on the Garden Peninsula will be found the purple Fringed Orchids. It grows on foot-tall stalk. Each of its many small blossoms is a perfect but tiny orchid, with all of the exotic beauty of orchids sold in a florist shop.

* * *

THREAT TO BEAUTY—There are many other species of wild orchids to be found in this North Country, including the Pogonias, Pinks, Ladies Tresses and others.

In some locations they might be considered numerous, yet as civilization advances the orchids slowly retreat—for they are a flower of the wild. Some day, perhaps, some species will be extinct, while others will be found only in cultivation.

To save the orchids, do not pick them. Mark their location if you wish and go back to enjoy their beauty each season. The fragile blossoms are one of the North Country's never-failing and rarest flowering plants.

READERS ASK QUESTIONS

Pyrric victory: About the year 280 B. C., the people of Tarentum, a Greek colony in Italy, now the city of Taranto, called the Grecian king, Pyrrhus, to come to their aid and stop the bands of Romans that continually raided the colony. So able a general was he that, though he lost half his ships in crossing the stormy Adriatic, Pyrrhus was victorious in his first fight with the Romans. However, his victory cost him so many lives among his own forces that he knew his army could not survive a second battle. Thus the saying, a Pyrrhic victory (PIR-ik), came to mean a victory at ruinous cost.

Evanston, Ill.—"Which of the prepositions, to, of, or till, is correctly used in telling the number of minutes before the hour?"—Miss W. E.

Answer. — The preposition commonly used in the United States, where the time spoken of refers to some part of the hour, is "of." Thus we say, "It is a quarter of eight, or ten minutes of twelve." In England, however, "to" is preferred; "It is ten minutes to twelve." "Ten minutes till twelve," or "A quarter tell eight" is dialectal.

* * *

Buffalo. — "Is the word 'alibi' properly used as a synonym for 'excuse'?"—S. C.

Answer.—"Alibi" means, in its legal sense, a plea of innocence by undertaking to show that the accused person was elsewhere at the time the crime was committed. Thanks to that, the meaning was popularly extended to cover innocence of any charge, whether committed or omitted. And thus the popular meaning now covers any excuse of whatever nature. This popular or colloquial usage has long been included in most dictionaries.

The Doctor Says . . .

Take Care to Avoid Diseases Carried to Humans by Pets

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D. — Written for NEA Service

A letter from Mrs. R. H. raises a point. She says that her eight-year-old daughter has been found to have intestinal worms and wonders whether the young tomcat they have could be responsible.

"I do not believe my daughter got her worms from the cat," Mrs. H. says, "but when she is home she is forever carrying him around and kissing him. Can he reinfect her, or am I worrying needlessly??"

This raises the interesting question as to what diseases, if any, can be spread by household pets. So far as cats are concerned, it is known that various kinds of ringworm can be contracted from these animals, and it is also known that one investigator found 37 kinds of worms in cats, a number of which are able to infect human beings.

This shows that it is possible for a youngster to become infested with worms and certainly the practice of kissing or nuzzling these animals increases the danger.

Another disease which cats can occasionally transmit to human beings is known as cat-scratch disease, or cat-scratch fever.

Rabies, or hydrophobia, has been found occasionally in cats, and a cat stricken with this disease is a serious menace to human beings. Tuberculosis is not common among cats, and there appear to have been few cases of human tuberculosis contracted in this manner.

In mentioning these diseases which can be transmitted by cats, I do not mean to imply that these animals are a danger around the house, since hundreds of thousands of people have cats as pets and never acquire any disease from them.

The same kind of problem exists with regard to dogs. Dogs harbor a great many animal parasites, although only a few of them can cause human infection. Occasionally a dog tapeworm can be acquired from dogs by swallowing an infected flea.

KEEP DOGS OFF BEACHES

A skin condition called creeping eruption caused by a small worm closely related to hookworm, infects many dogs. It passes directly through the skin and therefore dogs should be kept off bathing beaches where people go barefooted.

Animals should not be allowed to bite or scratch. People should not let them lick the face, particularly the mouth, and should wash the hands after handling them and before eating.

Kissing animals is unwise. These precautions should be followed and pets showing signs of illness hould be taken promptly to the veterinarian.

Dr. Spaeth Would Teach Enjoyment Of Good Music

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—If Dr. Sigmund Spaeth has his way, nobody will ever use the term "music appreciation" again. Spaeth, the "Tune Detective," thinks that hackneyed phrase is much too vague. He feels you can teach people to enjoy music, not appreciate it.

And he's setting out to try to spread the gospel of music enjoyment through a new organization, "Music for Millions." Spaeth is the chairman of the sponsoring committee of the group, which is "a non - profit organization for promoting the enjoyment of great music."

Music for Millions is putting out a series of 20 long - playing records, comprising what Spaeth calls "a basic library of good music." Each record will carry his commentary. He'll sit at his piano, talk about the piece coming up, analyze what popular songs have been taken from the piece, let the audience hear the basic themes.

* * *

"I simply tell what I happen to know about a piece of music," Spaeth says, "and try to impart some of my own enthusiasm to those who may not yet be familiar with its beauty or the reasons for its appeal."

These three-minute comments will be on a separate band around the record, so they can be omitted if desired. But, says executive director Louis Livingston, the set is planned primarily for school and club music courses, so

DR. SIGMUND SPAETH: "I simply tell what I know . . ."

Spaeth's introductions are important.

Livingston and Spaeth are trying to provide schools and clubs with the necessary materials for teaching music enjoyment. They've cut costs to the bone. Besides the 20 records, they're supplying a three-speed record player, needles, a teaching aid book and a monthly publication of music information in one package. The whole works will cost around $50.

* * *

They've enlisted the cooperation of Don Gabor, record manufacturer, who will turn out the series at cost. The performers are all leading musicians, and the records themselves are top-quality, unbreakable, 12 - inch vinylite.

Eventually, says Livingston, they hope to embark on a regular program of supplying classes and clubs with records. Their plan is to supply a record a week at a low price, and throw in a bonus record with every fourth purchase.

But, for the present, they're concentrating on the first package. Record No. 1 in the series, consisting of Mendelssohn's overture and incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and his Nocturne, Scherzo and Wedding March, is finished.

Subsequent records will include works by Schubert, Beethoven, Dvorak, Tschaikovsky, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Rossini, Wagner, Mozart, Haydn, Strauss, Liszt, Chopin, Rachmaninoff, Grieg, Brahms and others. When the whole set is finished, Spaeth says, a school will have "a practical library of permanently significant music."

Lay Off 90 At Docks As Steel Strike Hits

The steel strike struck close home today in Escanaba as 90 men were notified of lay-off starting tonight with prospect that Chicago & North Western ore docks here will be closed tight by the end of this week.

Ore loading on all ranges was stopped with the walkout of the CIO steel workers. Mines were closing on all three ranges—Menominee, Gogebic and Marquette—that ship ore to Escanaba.

Boats are being cancelled as the movement of ore is halted from the mines and unloading operations are stopped at Lower Lakes ports near the closed smelters.

"It looks like we will be completely tied up by the end of the week," said L. A. McMillan, C&NW dock agent.

The lay-off of the 90 men on three shifts will begin tonight at the docks. More will be laid off as the week advances and shipping is reduced.

By Saturday approximately 175 workers at the docks will be out of jobs until the steel strike is ended and the movement of ore is resumed.

One boat is scheduled to come in today to be loaded out, and two boats are scheduled for loading Wednesday. Two boats each on Thursday and Friday will complete the schedule before the closing.

After that it is just a question if there will be more boats this season, said the dock agent. There is some ore in the yards but if it cannot be unloaded at Lower Lake ports it will not be shipped out.

President Has 3 Choices Of Moves In Steel Crisis

leading industry negotiator, announced last night that the steel firms, now back in the hands of their owners, would "sit down with the union without delay to try to reach a fair settlement of the steel strike."

Can't Avoid Shutdown

Murray, too, had suggested renewed talks but insisted that the union was still standing on Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) recommendations for a 26-ceent-cent-an-hour "package" increase in an 18-month contract. These terms have been unacceptable to the industry.

Stephens pointed out that the industry has offered a 12¾-cent hourly pay boost, plus about five cents an hour in "fringe" benefits, or 17½ cents in all. It was understood this offer was contingent, however, on government approval of higher steel prices. Workers presently make about $1.95 an hour, including overtime.

The industry offer also was apparently on the basis of a one-year contract. It was believed that any contract eventually agreed upon would run well over a year, since nearly half of 1952 is already gone and the union is demanding that contract gains date back to the beginning of the year.

Barring a quick industry-union agreement, the country seemed in for a steel strike of at least a week's duration.

Any Truman appeal for special legislation probably would face tough sledding on Capitol Hill. On this score, the President might ask for special steel-seizure authority. The Supreme Court struck down Truman's seizure on the basis that it lacked legal sanction.

Iron Mines Affected

Similarly, the Taft-Tartley law route would take time. The law calls for appointment of a special fact-finding board. This board would have to hold hearings to get facts on the issues in dispute. Only after receiving the board's report could Truman authorize the justice department to seek the 80-day court injunction against a continued strike.

Truman has argued against using the T-H law on the ground that, before seizure, the union waited longer without striking than the 80-day T-H "cooling off" period. Administration leaders also argue that the 80-day period could come and go without settling the basic contract dispute.

Still another possibility: The workers, even if ordered by a court injunction to return to their jobs, might not do so. Coal miners refused to return under such an injunction in 1950 even when ostensibly ordered back by their union leader, John L. Lewis.

Effects of the steel strike began being felt almost immediately. The government embargoed all shipments of steel from retail warehouses to consumer goods producers. However, officials said most manufacturers have at least a month's supply on hand.

Automobile manufacturers are likely to run into trouble if the strike lasts any time. Officials said they are down to a two-week supply.

Some, coal, iron ore and other mining facilities began to close because of the steel stoppage. Coal is generally in plentiful supply above ground.

FURNACES BANKED

Detroit—(AP)—Fires were banked today in seven Detroit area steel mills as officials of the striking CIO Steelworkers sought to reopen contract negotiations on a local level.

Thomas Shane, regional director for the steel workers, who called 18,000 employes out on strike yesterday, said he was awaiting an answer to his invitation to the seven companies for a resumption of wage talks.

The wage talks were suspended during the time the nation's steel mills were under government control.

Shane said the banking of huge furnaces at the Great Lakes Steel Corp., plant here would be completed late today. Maintenance employes were the only ones of some 10,000 steel workers left on the job by the union following the Supreme Court order yesterday restoring the steel mills to their owners.

The strike was not expected to impede defense production immediately.

Officials at the Detroit Tank Arsenal said enough steel had been stockpiled to allow the continued production of M-47 tanks for two weeks.

Other Detroit area industries also reported steel stocks sufficient to withstand a short steel strike.

However construction of civic projects was almost certain to be curtailed or halted.

Women Stowaways On Flight To Guam Get Year's Probation

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—(AP)—Two young mothers who stowed away to Guam on an Air Force B-29 have been placed on a year's probation.

Federal Judge Oliver J. Carter agreed yesterlay with their plea that they acted on impulse when they boarded the B-29 at nearby McClellan Air Force Base in April.

Jeri T. McDaniel, 26, mother of three, and Maxine Allen, 23, who has one child, both pleaded guilty. They already had lost their McClellan jobs as a result of the escapade.

Judge Carter told them prison terms probably would do them more harm than good. But he urged them to adjust their lives so their children would "have the upbringing to which they are entitled."

And he decreed they must pay the $250 the government billed them for the ride.

Hot GOP Contests Get Top Billing In 3 Primaries Today

vention in Chicago.

But to Eisenhower and his chief rival for the Republican presidential nomination, Ohio's Sen. Robert Taft, the psychological prize far outweighed the small number of degelate votes involved.

Taft and Eisenhower were rated neck-and-neck for South Dakota's 14 GOP votes. It is their last clear-cut joust before the July 7 convention. A Taft victory could dull some of the luster of the general's homecoming. A win for Eisenhower could make him a hard man to stop at the convention.

Hate Campaign Charged

About 120,000 voters are expected to turn out in South Dakota.

The Democratic race there, by comparison, was mild. Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee is conceded a favorite over a state organization slate pledged to Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

Republicans take top billing in California, too, where 70 GOP and 68 Democratic delegate votes are at stake. Officials look for 3,600,000 votes from the 5,300,000 registration.

California Gov. Earl Warren is backed by the state's leading Republicans in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination. He has accused his political foes of waging a hate campaign.

Rep. Thomas Werdel, up for re-election and a backer of Taft or Gen. Douglas MacArthur, retorted: "The hate and villification in this campaign comes from the governor."

"Taft himself has stayed clear of the California primary. Eisenhower backers have endorsed Warren. MacArthur has said he is not a candidate but favors Taft.

Warren is given the edge among California Republicans, just as Kefauver is considered the favorite among California Democrats. Kefauver's opposition is a slate headed by Atty.-Gen. Edmund Brown, the state's No. 1 Democratic official.

In Alabama, Kefauver and Georgia Sen. Richard Russell each have seven pledged delegates. The 15th and final delegate, being named today in Alabama's primary, could break the deadlock or leave it as is. Of the two rivals for the post, one is pledged to Russell and the other is uncommitted but says he "leans" to Russell.

Some Maryland Democrats believe the 18 delegates being named at a Baltimore convention today are pledged to Kefauver. Others disagree. Kefauver won the May 5 primary. The question: Does Maryland law say the primary winner gets the votes or are there loopholes?

Kefauver and Taft are front-runners in the Associated Press Tabulation of delegate strength. The tally—based on concessions, pledges, instructions and avowed preferences and not including today's results—shows:

Republican—Taft 420, Eisenhower 387. Nomination requires 604.

Democrat—Kefauver 150, Russell 86½, W. Averell Harriman 85½. Nomination needs 616.

Human Bomb Flees Without Bank Loot

NEW YORK — (AP) — A card thrust at the bank teller read:

"Give me all the folding money you have in that cage. If you don't, you'll be killed on the spot because I have a pistol in one pocket and two vials of nitro in the other.

"Therefore I am a human bomb."

The teller, Charles Lehanka, 27, glanced across the counter at the bandit confronting him yesterday in an Irving Trust Company branch.

Lehanka thought fast. He pretended to lose his balance and deliberately fell from his stool, pressing the trigger of a holdup alarm.

The teller's sudden action frightened the bandit, who fled empty handed.

Walkout Threat Ends At Ford Canada Plant

WINDSOR, Ont. —(AP)— Union acceptance of a wage increase last night ended a new strike threat at the Ford of Canada plant here.

The dispute had idled 900 office workers since May 18. The plant closed May 23, putting some 14,000 workers out, when production workers refused to cross the office employes' picket line.

The pickets were withdrawn Friday after Ontario Labor Minister Charles Daley arrange a truce, but union officials had said the pickets would return today unless a settlement was reached.

The union leaders said the company had offered a two-year contract increasing by $45 the basic monthly rate of $191.56.

you say so."

Later, Eisenhower had a 15-minute talk with secretary of state Acheson with whom he had worked closely for many months on the European defense project now headed by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

From the moment Eisenhower receives his retirement orders from the Army, he will be on "inactive status."

Under Retirement Age

The Pentagon disclosed last night Eisenhower asked on May 28 to be retired without pay. The request was made in a letter to Secretary of Defense Lovett.

An appropriations bill now pending in Congress carries a provision which would require the defense department to certify that retirement of an officer under 62 is (a) for the good of the service or (b) for reasons of personal hardship. Eisenhower is 61.

Eisenhower said in a letter to Lovett, written in Paris: "In view of the special circumstances of the case, I would not ask or want you to make any certification as is required by the current appropriations bill.

"As you know, my name is directly involved in the national political campaign. There are a number of delegates already pledged to seek my nomination as the Republican presidential candidate and, in the normal course of events, I will be talking to some of these delegates prior to the National convention. As an officer on the retired list, I would feel free to engage in such meetings without any possible interpretation that I might be violating or embarrassing the government or the army in any way x x x."

Leaves Late Today

The request was granted the following day after Lovett had talked over the situation with Truman.

In retiring without pay, Eisenhower gives up salary and allowances totaling $19,542 under the military pay raise bill recently passed by Congress.

The General had drawn one month's pay at the higher rate which became effective last month. All other five-star officers are drawing their pay except Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey, who also retired at his own request.

Eisenhower has said he will resign his army commission if he receives the GOP presidential nomination. In that case he would not be entitled either to pay or the services of the three aides now assigned to him.

The General will bid farewell to Washington late today (about 5 p. m., EST) and fly to Kansas City, Mo. He will spend the night at a hotel in Kansas City, Kan., and then go to Abilene next morning by train.

Plans call for him to speak briefly at noon when a cornerstone will be laid for the Eisenhower museum which will house the General's vast collection of war trophies and souvenirs.

Headquarters In Denver

An afternoon parade will depict scenes from Eisenhower's life from boyhood to the pinnacle of military fame. And then at 6 p. m., EST, he will address the throng gathered to welcome him. The speech will be televised and radio-broadcast across the nation.

On Thursday, Eisenhower will hold his first out-of-uniform news conference and reporters will be free to fire political questions at him.

He will spend Thursday night in Abilene and on Friday will fly to New York for a week's stay before heading West for a speech in Detroit and to set up his headquarters in Denver, Colo.

Wall Street

By RADER WINGET

NEW YORK—(AP)—Steel stocks made quiet progress today in a generally lower market while steel production was choked off by a nationwide strike.

Gains were fractional in the steels, and elsewhere the advance extended a bit past a point. On the downside losses amounted to fractions to around a point.

Railroads were under mild pressure in the first hour, but they improved as the session progressed.

Motors presented a ragged front as did rubbers, radio-televisions, utilities, and chemicals. Lower were merchandising issues, oils, and non-ferrous metals.

Aircrafts got a brief upward whirl about the time General Eisenhower in a news conference in Washington said the dominant factor in any future war will be air power. He added that he stood for "air power and air force in every way it is possible to do so."

Higher stocks included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, and Boeing. Lower were Atlantic Coast Line, General Motors, American Smelting and Standard Oil (NJ).

Wall Street's immediate reaction to the steel strike was to take to the side lines. No one appeared to be willing to take the lead without some clear indication of what developments can be expected.

The stock market yesterday greeted the Supreme Court decision turning the steel industry back to its owners and the start of the steel strike with considerable indecision. By the end of the day that had translated itself into slightly lower prices.

The Russians also barred Allied motor patrols from the Berlin-Helmstedt superhighway for the ninth straight day but the city's lifeline rail, barge and highway traffic to West Germany remained open and normal.

Can't Get Passes

Many West Berliners who work in the east zone still were locked out because they have been unable to obtain the special police passes now required by the Russians.

Since Saturday midnight, the Communists have ordered that all outsiders travelling in the Russians zone must have such passes. Thus far the Communists have not set up offices to hand out the permits.

Rich California Land Covered By Floods When Levees Burst

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Thousands of acres of rich California farm lands lay under water today. The Tule and San Joaquin rivers — swollen by an unprecedented spring runoff—burst through levees near the center and at the south end of the fertile Central Valley.

More than 30,000 acres of cotton and grain lands in the Tulare basin were inundated, while 150 miles to the north, the San Joaquin spilled out over 5,000 acres of alfalfa and tomatoes near Tracy.

Experts predicted further levee breaks as record snows melt in the Sierra Nevada. Many streams are brimfull and the pressure is increasing.

Army engineers said Tulare Lake—which covered only four square miles two months ago—will be 100 miles square in two days. It lies in a drainless basin from which water can only escape by exaporation.

Tornado Kills Girl Near Waterloo, Ia.

(By The Associated Press)

Wet and cooler weather was the outlook for mid-continent areas today but it was pleasant in most other parts of the country.

Small craft warnings were posted on Lakes Michigan, Huron and Erie last night. Showers and thunderstorms hit sections from eastern Lake Superior south and southwestward into Illinois. Showers also were reported in the southern Rockies. Coolest areas were the northern plains and the far southwest.

An eight-year-old girl was killed and two persons were injured last night in a tornado which struck rural areas about 30 miles west of Waterloo, Ia. Several farm buildings were demolished. Heavy rain and hail followed the storm in northeastern Iowa.

Largest Carpet Mill In World Closed By Walkout In Yonkers

NEW YORK—(AP)— Forty two hundred CIO textile workers struck Monday against Alexander Smith, Inc., closing down the company's Yonkers factory, largest carpet mill in the world.

Demanding higher wages and other benefits, the union had called on a total of 18,000 carpet factory workers to go on strike today in mills in the northeast.

The TWUA spokesman said the firms affected in the wage dispute included Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Company, Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., Alexander Smith, Inc., and Karagheusian Inc.

However, response to the TWUA strike call was uncertain because this union's former executive vice president, George Baldanzi, recently went over to the AFL United Textile Workers. Baldanzi is trying to woo TWUA members to the AFL union.

C., the figures represent goods and services required, and taxes paid, by a family consisting of a father, housewife not gainfully employed and two children under 15 years of age. Highest housing costs, which accounted for big living cost differences between cities, were reported in Washington, Richmond, Houston and Milwaukee. Cities cited as having highest food costs were Savannah, Mobile, Atlanta, Seattle and Birmingham.

Abilene, Kas., Nearly Perfect Background For U. S. President

By RELMAN MORIN

ABILENE, Kas. — (AP) — From a political point of view, general Dwight D. Eisenhower picked a good place to be reared, in fact almost a perfect place.

If the men who are now directing his presidential campaign had sat down to design a politically desirable background for him, they would have chosen these ingredients:

A small town, preferably in the Middle West . . . A medium-large family in the middle income bracket . . . A two-story frame house, painted white with porches in front and back . . . It would be comfortably but not expensively furnished, with hooked rugs, rocking chairs, an upright piano, and a large wall clock ticking in the silence of the parlor.

Typically American

A church and a red brick schoolhouse would stand nearby, and beyond, the wheat fields, and beyond them the enormous authority of the great plains.

The candidate himself should be as typically American as his locale . . . He would like baseball and football and he would go fishing with the crooked branch of a tree for a rod . . . The "Old Swimming Hole" would be hidden in the woods not far away.

The boy, however, would work after school and on Saturdays for his pocket money and later, to help with the expenses of going to college.

All the details, in short, would be selected so as to form a picture of an intensely typical American boy in a setting totally familiar to millions of other Americans, probably the greatest single group of people in the country.

Home Now Shrine

This is precisely the background, complete to the last detail, from which Eisenhower emerged.

It is the scene to which he returns next Wednesday for what will be the intense stage of the campaign to obtain the Republican nomination.

The white frame house now has been deeded by the Eisenhowers to a foundation which made it a shrine dedicated to the United States armed forces. The school and the church, but not the original buildings, are still just across the street. The town line of Abilene, like a hair line receding with age, has changed. Today, the house literally is on the edge of the fields.

Abilene itself is a leafy little community of 5,800, quiet and with an air of modest prosperity.

To this scene some 50,000 or more of Eisenhower's admirers are expected to come on Wednesday when he arrives. The ceremonies include a parade of floats depicting his life here, in West Point and overseas.

A major speech, to be televised nationally, follows the parade, and on Thursday a press conference which could be of exceeding importance has been scheduled. In anticipation of some 300 news and radio correspondents, the conference will be held in a motion picture theater.

Eisenhower has invited Republican delegates, governors and state chairmen to meet him here and to discuss issues. Committeemen said the response is "very good." More than 100 from Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Arkansas and Oklahoma are reported to be on the way.

The general expects to meet others in New York, Detroit and Denver.

But only the ones that come to Abilene will see him against the background where he started.

Park Stroller Finds 2 Dead In Love Pact

NEW YORK— (AP)— A stroller in Central Park came upon the bodies of a man and woman lying four feet apart.

Police found on the bodies two notes written on one sheet of paper. Both were to the same effect.

"Cannot live together and are not going to live apart . . .Hope we will be buried together as one."

A .45 caliber automatic pistol lay nearby.

Police said it appeared that Louis Rizarry, about 38 and married, had killed Mrs. Juanita Rivera, a divorcee about 30, with two shots and then killed himself with a shot in the mouth.

The Santa Gretrudis breed of cattle is said to be the only beef cattle breed developed in the United States.

Big Parachute Tested With Six-Ton Load

EL CENTRO, Calif.— (AP) —Six tons of lead and cement floated to the ground yesterday in two of the world's largest parachutes, which had been dropped from a flying boxcar at 2300 feet.

Parachute experts at the El Centro Naval Air Station are testing the big umbrella's ability to drop heavy military equipment. Officials theorize, however, the smaller chutes or clusters of them will probably prove more practical than the big one.

The chute is made of three-quarters of an acre of nylon and is 200 feet in diameter. When packed it is tall as a man.

Paris Red Labor Union To Strike

PARIS — (AP)—The Communist-run French Confederation of Labor (CGT) has called a 24-hour strike in the Paris area Wednesday in protest against the government's weekend crackdown on the Reds.

The demand—for workers to lay down their tools once they get back to work Wednesday after the long Pentecostal weekend—went out after a meeting of the CGT executive committee.

The strike call followed a similar appeal for a nation-wide walkout last week. The three million members of CGT virtually ignored this first demand.

There was a much better chance, however, that the new mass walkout will work. By calling on only the Paris area, the CGT can expect fair support from the "Red Belt" by workers surrounding the metropolitan district.

The proposed demonstration is aimed at Premier Antoine Pinay's government in retaliation for its raids Saturday on Communist party headquarters in Paris and other French cities. In the raids police swooped down on Red centers, confiscating papers and weapons.

Last week's strike call was made following the arrest of Communist Leader Jacques Duclos in the midst of rioting which was partly anti-American.

Jet Planes Are Fast; Blink Your Eyes And They're Gone

By RAY CARPENTER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

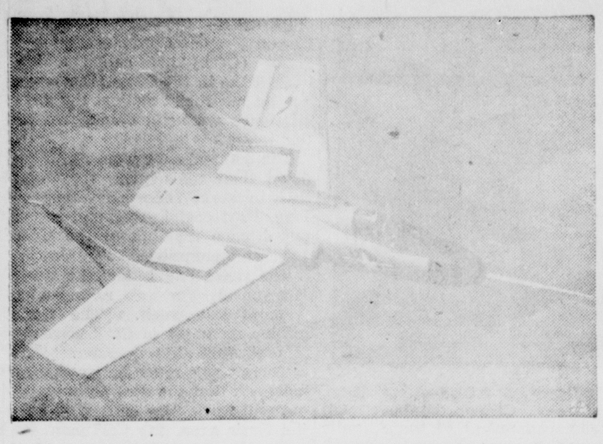

DALLAS—The weird looking craft's two jet engines roared and it began rolling down the runway. Four or five seconds later it was airborne.

The pilot banked the plane sharply and pulled it skyward into a tight spiral. At the top of a 90-degree turn the "fastest fighter afloat" shot almost straight upward.

You blinked your eye and it was out of sight.

It was the Navy's newest jet interceptor, the F7U-3 Cutlass, designed to outfly and outfight any plane in the air. It probably is the fastest airplane produced in the United States today. The plane is manufactured here by Chance Vought, a division of United Aircraft.

Several pilots are known to have flown the F7U-1 Cutlass, predecessor of the F7U-3, faster than the speed of sound. Official sources, however, have not confirmed this. The Navy says the plane is in the "over 600 mile an hour class."

CUTLASS JET has been called a flying engine.

Plane Causes Shock Wave

Col. Fred J. Ascani, 34, deputy commander of the flight test center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., dived the F7U-1 Cutlass so fast recently that it caused a shock wave. So did Lt. Col. Richard L. Johnson, 34, of Wright-Patterson test center at Dayton, O.

These shock waves vibrated a large area of nearby Dallas, and caused residents to fear a terrific explosion had occurred in an industrial plant. Police and newspaper telephone exchanges were swamped with inquiring calls.

Dr. Wayne Redmose, a professor of physics at Southern Methodist University, said the planes had to go through the sonic barrier to cause the sound blast. "To set up a shock wave of this magnitude the plane would have to be going faster than the speed of sound," he said.

Sound travels about 760 miles an hour at sea level. At 40,000 feet, if the temperature is—40 degrees, the speed of sound is approximately 665 mph.

Two Jet Engines

The Cutlass is built around two turbo jet engines equipped with afterburners. The afterburners give the added boost needed for quick climbs and are used for combat emergency power.

The afterburner is an engine behind an engine. It creates additional thrust by burning the oxygen still left in the exhaust air of the turbo jet power plant.

The greatest drawback of the afterburner is its insatiable thirst for fuel. It uses a great deal more fuel than the jet engine.

Rate of Climb

The rate of climb of the Cutlass is almost unbelievable. Chance Vought officials won't say, but authoritative estimates place the rate of climb at 12,480 feet per minute at sea level with the use of afterburners.

This incredible rate of climb is gradually reduced at higher altitudes to an estimated 5,080 feet per minute at 35,000.

To look at it, you'd say the F7U's design is radical. It has no horizontal tail surfaces. The vertical stabilizer is built into the swept-back wings. Elevators and ailerons combined in the trailing edge of the stubby wings are known as ailavators.

But the designers says it is the logical answer to demands for high speed and the use of two jet engines in a fighter.

Flying Engine

The F7U is a departure from the flying wing theory. It is the nearest thing to a flying engine ever to reach production lines.

The pilot sits well forward in his cabin overlooking the plane's short nose. The cabin is pressurized, and either heated or cooled by automatic air conditioning equipment.

The F7U has yet to reach the fleet in numbers. But the Cutlass proved its worth in tests off the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Midway in July, 1951.

British Coal Output Lags Behind Mark Of Private Ownership

LONDON— (AP) —Britain's vital coal production last year hit the highest mark since the mines were nationalized in 1947, the national coal board reported today. But the 1951 output still didn't reach prewar production under private ownership.

The coal board's annual report said last year's output totalled 211,900,000 tons—up 7,800,000 from 1950. Before the war it went as high as 259 million.

Britain imported coal last year from United States to meet increased rearmament demands.

The report said the industry still suffered a manpower shortage.

Higher wages and no rise in coal prices gave the industry its first deficit since 1947, a loss of 1,800,000 pounds ($5,040,000).

Sumac Tested Out As Food For Deer

By JAMES A. O. CROWE

LANSING— (AP) —Still looking for something which can be planted in deer starvation areas to provide winter food, Harry D. Ruhl, conservation department game chief, is investigating a new idea.

He is hopeful that ordinary sumac may have some possibilities.

The idea is still in the dream stage, but Ruhl may ask the conservation commission soon for permission to start experimental plantings.

Snow Buries Rye

The search for a plant which will provide winter deer food in overbrowsed areas has been long and unsuccessful. The latest Michigan experiment, made at the insistance of Commissioner Richard H. Fletcher, Jr., of Bay City, involved planting of rye strips in and near some winter deer yards.

Most observers feel that, so far at least, the rye plantings have fallen short. It is true that rye is a good deer feed, but it is only available to the deer when other natural food is available to them. When they really need supplemental feeding—in time of deep snow—the rye is buried under the snow.

Thus the deer have to fall back on their old, but now not so reliable cedar. In many places in the state, too many deer have been browsing for too many years on a limited supply of cedar.

This means the cedar can not recover enough in the summer by growing new shoots to supply enough food for the deer the next winter.

This process, repeated year after year, is having serious effects on the deer herd by killing off the young and weakening the breeding stock.

Grows On Poor Soils

The conservation commission has been given power to increase the kill of deer to reduce the surplus and bring the herd back into better balance with the available winter food supply.

But this is only part of the answer. A new supply of winter food would also contribute much to solving the problem.

Cedar plantings have been found impractical, because the new seedlings are the first to be eaten.

So Ruhl fervently hopes the sumac idea may work.

In the first place, sumac grows very fast, and it is hoped it will get a chance to establish itself in the first summer. It grows well on the poor soils that make up most of the deer range, and it grows tall enough to stick up above the snow.

More than that, deer will eat it, and it contains enough nutrients to support them through the worst of the winter.

So watch for a request to the conservation commission for funds to experiment with sumac plantings in deer yards.

Franc May Totter-But Not The Folies Bergere

AMERICAN IN PARIS starring in current Folies Bergere is tap dancer Eileen O'Dare, here performing in "Symphony in Blue."

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Writer

PARIS—(NEA)—Cabinets may fall, the franc totter and the cost of living rise to unprecented heights, but the Folies Bergere goes on just the same.

Producer Paul Derval's latest super-revue represents eight months' work and is said to have cost 150,000,000 francs, which is a lot of francs even when they're devalued. The result of this time, money and effort is a show which rates a loud "Oooh, la la!" from natives and tourists alike.

This year's star is pretty Yvonne Menard, who came up from the ranks. Four years and two revues ago, she was just a "mannequin," or naked girl.

Sharing the spotlight is Eileen O'Dare, an American tap dancer. She stars in "Symphony in Blue" and a New Orleans scene, two of the 30 tableaux that make up this 28th Folies, called "A Complete Folly."

• • •

Other attractions are blonde Sive Norden, who modeled clothes for Schiaparelli when she first came to Paris from Stockholm. And there is a Polish girl, Veronica Bell, who makes her appearance in a golden cage lowered from the rafters.

There are a group of Negro dancers, led by Ruby Richards and Babe Wallace. And, among the 70 nude girls and chorines, is six-foot Monique Staline whose last name has made her famous. She's a Tahitian who is confident that one day she'll fill the same role as Josephine Baker.

The revue gives the patrons their money's worth. Among the 30 fast-changing scenes are the "Nymphs' Bath," which features a swimming pool over the entire stage; a scene showing what Paris will be like in the year 2001; a horse-propelled carousel in another scene; and a surrealist ballet in a set that represents the ruins of Warsaw.

• • •

In the eight months it took to assemble "A Complete Folly," 80 dressmakers, 12 embroiderers and 18 modistes worked steadily in the Folies' workrooms, which cover three floors atop the famous music hall. They transformed 30 miles of fabrics, together with hundreds of pounds of feathers and spangles, into the 1800 elaborate (and often skimpy) costumes.

Most of the Folies' beauties are married and mothers, which prompted someone to call the dressing rooms "Mother's Meeting Place." They take their glamorous jobs casually, usually live quiet lives with their families offstage and have absolutely no inhibitions about their profession.

"It's a job," said one, shrugging a pretty set of shoulders, "just like being a saleswoman or a stenographer."

Don't Let Your Pals Chase Him For You

By Elizabeth B. Hurlock, Ph.D.

One of the mistaken kindnesses in life for a girl's friends to try to further her romance by telling a boy how she feels about him. That is what is causing trouble for the 15-year-old girl who wrote:

(Q) "About three years ago, I met a very nice boy. He asked me for dates many times but I was not allowed to go. I explained this to him, he understood and was very nice. Now I am allowed to go out in a group but he never asks me. My friends tell him I still like him but he never says anything to that. Do you think it will turn him against me when friends tell him that I like him? Is there anything I can do to win him back?"

(A) If you want this boy to like you, for heaven's sake tell your friends to stop trying to match-make for you. Nothing will turn a boy away from a girl more quickly than that. I am sure they mean well and have no thought of breaking you two up but their tactics are bad.

No boy likes to hear second-hand that a girl like him. It embarrasses him and it makes him mad to think a girl has been talking about him behind his back. Naturally he assumes that you have been doing this or how would your friends know how you feel about him?

If you can silence your friends, you will have won the first round. Then take the aggressive approach and invite him to do something with you. That will not be a case of "chasing him" as you really owe him an invitation after the number of times he invited you out.

You could invite him to a school party, to be your escort at a party one of your friends is giving, or you could organize a party or picnic of your friends and invite him with the rest of the group. Be especially nice and attentive, but don't embassass him with over attention.

Because this boy liked you three years ago is no guarantee that he has any special interest in you today. Boys in the early teens are fickle, just as girls are. They go from one girl to another. Don't take this matter too seriously. If he shows no further interest in you, let it go at that. There are plenty of other boys. Don't eat your heart out over one.

Utilities Topic At Last Night's League Meeting

Superintendents of the Escanaba utilities, Hugo Lillquist of the electrical department, J. R. Clark of the gas and steam departments and A. C. Christensen of the water department were speakers at the meeting of the League of Women Voters held last evening at Carnegie Public Library. The program was arranged by Mrs. Robert Mosenfelder, "Know-Your-Town" chairman.

Mr. Lillquist reported on the increase in electric usage from 1941 to 1951, 6 million kilowatt hours to about 24. Residential increase has been from 2½ to almost 9 million kilowatt hours and commercial and power use has also increased greatly, he reported. Mr Lillquist stated that there now are 5,300 residential, 700 commercial and 200 power customers

The problem of obtaining power was discussed, and many questions asked by the group.

Mr. Clark presented information on the gas and steam plants. He told of the advantages of propane gas. to which the city is now converting. It is expected that the gas department will then go from a deficit to a profit operation with no further cost to the consumer, he said. As against the losses of former years, as of May 1, the steam plant shows a profit of $4,400 above expenses, he reported. In answer to a question about smoke nuisance in the city, Mr. Clark pointed out that use of city steam reduces this nuisance, as well as fire losses.

Mr. Christensen described the steps used to procure clean water for the people in Escanaba, and gave figures telling how much water is taken from the wells and lake, what the fluorine content is, and answered many questions asked by the group.

The next meeting will cover the Health and welfare departments.

Mrs. Oliver Fuller, president, announced that a vote will be taken at the next meeting to choose new items for study.

The designations, used to break up the vast Orient into easily identified sections, have been variously interpreted at different times. Newsmap, above, shows locations of the three regions, based on geographical divisions, as outlined by the National Geographic Society.

Big Warehouse Being Built By Canning Plant

Construction of a large warehouse was begun yesterday by the Gladstone Division of Country Gardens, Inc.

The structure will be 50x150 feet in size, of single story, cement block construction and will adjoin the present canning plant on the east side.

Rex Stowe, local contractor, has the contract for the structure which will be similar in style and construction to the original plant.

Popularity of Country Gardens products and tremendous increases in acreage of wax and green beans being contracted for has resulted in the need for additional storage space, Joseph VanArnam, plant manager, states.

This year Country Gardens is reaching into Schoolcraft county. The firm is also conducting experimental plantings of a number of new crops which if successful will result in a longer canning season. Continued experimentation is to be the rule, Van Arnam said.

Another crop which will be added to the list of canned vegetables will be small potatoes, provided they may be obtained economically. This was assured by Norman Sorenson, Milwaukee, on a recent visit to Gladstone.

Additional machinery will be installed in the plant this summer to care for additional production, as all beans from the Coleman area are to be shipped to Gladstone for processing, according to the local manager.

Whereas in the past, Coleman has been the business headquarters of Country Gardens, spearate units have now been formed and the local plant is now set up as the Gladstone division of Country Gardens and all business in connection with the Gladstone plant will be handled locally, Van Arnam states.

Weed Killing Job Is Never Finished

WEED KILLER being used by Cynthia Lowry.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Once planting activities are over and a schedule of spraying and dusting established, the principal activity of the gardener is confined to warfare on weeds.

By dictionary definition and with general consent by the gardening fraternity, a weed may be described as any plant which is growing out of place. Honeysuckle tumbling down a bank or sprawling over a stone wall may be just what the landscaper ordered, but when it seeks to establish itself in the vegetable garden, it is automatically marked for extermination.

By popular definition a large number of specific plants—mostly annuals and all of them healthy, adaptable and with a tendency toward rank growth — are generally considered weeds.

Most 'Popular' Weeds

For the small home owner and the week-end gardener, the list includes dandelions, plantain, docks, sorrel, purslate, chickweed, pigweed, ragweed, spurge, mullein, wild mustard, thistle and burdock. And, particularly in the East and the Midwest, that bane of the lawngrower's existence, crabgrass.

Many of these have a disagreeable tendency to establish themselves securely in the lawn, completely fulfilling the dictionary definition, because what is sought for lawns are perennial grasses and, sometimes, clover. Weeds growing in the flower and vegetable beds are more easily handled.

Once upon a time, no one had a good word to say in favor of the weed, and they were ruthlessly exterminated. The classic case against weeds is that they deprive the wanted plants of needed food and moisture, that they frequently act as host plants for disease and insects.

Weeds Are Useful

Of more recent date, a few voices have been raised on behalf of weeds. Prof. Joseph A. Cocannouer of the University of Oklahoma calls them "guardians of the soil."

He claims among other things that the controlled use of weeds helps prevent the sun from scorching the earth and preserves moisture. The deep foraging roots of some of them bring up minerals and nitrogen from below the reach of some plants' roots so that it can be utilized.

For the small gardener, however, weeds are undesirable additions to the plant family if for no other reason than they give the gardens and lawns an untidy, unattractive and unkempt look. They are kept down by a number of techniques, including pulling them out by hand.

For the broad-leaved weeds which seem to establish themselves easily in the lawn, there are the selective 2,4-D killers, chemical hormone preparations which should be used with utmost care and with strict attention to the manufacturer's instructions. While these spare the slender blades of wanted grass, the person applying the preparations by dust or spray should be careful not to allow the wind to carry the material to trees or flowers.

Cultivating, either rooting out or chopping off the weeds below ground, is an effective way of keeping down the population. So is the practice of mulching between the rows and around plants.

Hold Special Rites For Naval Dead At Indian River Bridge

A Manistique township dedication and memorial service last Friday morning was expanded to include special services at Fairview cemetery and a ceremony for deceased naval veterans at Indian Lake.

Following services at the new Manistique township hall, units of the Manistique VFW and its auxiliary held graveside memorial rites at Fairview in memory of Mrs. George Dupont and at the new Indian River bridge at Indian Lake for deceased navy veterans.

During the bridge ceremony flowers were tossed into the swirling river in honor of Schoolcraft County men who died in naval service.

In memorial services held in conjunction with the dedication of the Manistique town hall, tribute was extended to seven men from the township who lost their lives in World War II and in the present Korean conflict.

As the name of each deceased veteran was called, a member of the VFW auxiliary stepped forward and placed a carnation at the base of the township flag pole on which the colors were flying at half mast. At the conclusion of the service taps were sounded by James Monroe.

William J. Sheahan, of Manistique, prosecuting attorney, delivered the town hall dedicatory address.

Whoopers Off To Unknown Lands

NEW YORK— (AP) —America's most publicized bird, the whooping crane, has started its annual flight north, to possible extinction.

At a new low ebb of 23 wild birds (plus two in captivity), the species has a fighting chance to survive. It depends on the hazards of migration, on conditions at their unknown nesting ground in the far North, and on whether two dozen birds are too small a number to provide the spirit or whatever it is that makes a species live on.

The cranes winter at the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas. Attempts to locate their nesting sites have been unsuccessful.

Six More Canine Owners Are Taken Into Justice Court

As the parade of dog ordinance violators continues in Manistique justice court, the canine problem in the city is gradually being controlled, it is revealed by Roy D. Anderson, chief of police.

Six more violators have been taken into court, bringing to nine the total number of dog owners who have been apprehended for permitting their animals to run at large in defiance of ordinance regulations.

Seven of the nine violators paid fines and costs. In the case of two the cash penalty was suspended when the owners agreed to destroy their dogs.

Strict enforcement of the ordinance was ordered several weeks ago by the City Council.

Preacher Builds Church And Congregation, Too

SINGLE-HANDED—Preacher John D. Smith (inset) started all by himself to build this church in East Ridge near Chattanooga.

AP Newsfeatures

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — A hosiery mill worker - turned Church of God preacher—has become something of a 20th century Johnny Appleseed who plants churches.

When John D. Smith heard the call to p reach seven years ago, he had no church and no congregation. With 10 friends who formed his original flock, he set out to build his own church.

Friends in Construction Business

Some of the friends had connections in the construction business. They were invaluable in the building of a stone structure which was named the Alton Park (Chattanooga) Church of God.

Smith, who had never before laid a stone, was on the job every day as a laborer.

The new preacher's sermons and spirit attracted followers rapidly. But when the congregation had grown to 351 members, three years ago, Smith set out for new fields. He chose the nearby East Ridge district, where he had been born.

Smith borrowed money to buy a lot. A short time later he was offered a $900 profit for the property. He sold it and bought several lots.

Started Preaching in Tent

Again without a congregation, he erected a tent and held Sunday meetings, working weekdays on the foundation of his church.

He had never laid a brick but one of his new followers gave him lessons. Soon he was working late into the night. Youngsters of the neighborhood dropped by to watch and Smith persuaded them to mix mortar and carry bricks.

The church was completed recently, three years after it was started. Smith says "If the church has 50,000 bricks in it, I guess I laid 45,000."

Building Worth $75,000

Members of the congregation, now grown to 254, estimate the value of the building at $75,000. Smith, who doesn't count his own labor, says the cost to his followers will be $35,000.

The congregation had expected Smith to settle down after building a church in the place of his boyhood. A few days ago, however, they were surprised by an announcement:

Their preacher is leaving to build up a church near Decatur, Ala.

Socialist Candidate For President Urges Big Drive For Votes

CLEVELAND — (AP)—The Socialist party's new candidate for president has called for a "bang up drive" for votes.

"Our program will show that the common people can win greater freedom and a larger share of the national income," declared Attorney Darlington Hoopes, 55, of Reading, Pa.

The Socialists unanimously picked him as their presidential candidate at their 28th national convention which ended here yesterday. He had been named to his fourth straight term as party chairman earlier in the convention.

Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate six times, refused to run again and did not attend the meeting.

The choice of the 200 delegates for vice president was Samuel H. Friedman, also 55, of New York. He heads the New York local of the CIO Community and Social Agency Employes Union.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Li'l Abner — by Al Capp

In This Corner

With Ray Crandall

There hasn't been a huge publcity buildup, but ring fans are aware nevertheless of the heavyweight championship boxing match coming up Thursday night. Jersey Joe Walcott defends his crown for the first time against Ezzard Charles from whom he won it. The champion hasn't been in the ring in an official capacity since that night he surprised the boxing world by parking a left hook on Charles' jaw with a crash that provided one of the biggest upsets in ring history.

* * * * *

It looks from here as though Walcott's reign as king of the heavies will end Thursday night. Because the two fighters are about the same size—Charles weighed in at 196 yesterday—what advantage there is for one or the other must be given to the challenger because he is younger. Walcott says he's 38, but chances are he's 40 or more. Charles is 30, and even that is a ripe old age in the fight business.

* * * * *

In spite of the knockout victory in their last meeting, and with all due respect to Walcott's confidence and determination, we can't see the old boy in a repeat performance. Ezzard, although never a popular fighter in the sense that Joe Louis was, is a capable boxer. And he can punch with authority, too. We imagine his strategy will be to hit and move in the early rounds and wait for Walcott's legs to start creaking, as they surely must. When and if the champ tires, Charles knows how to finish a boxing match. At least that's how it should be, and that's how we think it will be.

Tigers In Nine-Player Trade With Boston Sox

DETROIT — (AP)—The Detroit Tigers announced today a nine-player deal that sent third baseman George Kell, outfielder Hoot Evers, pitcher Dizzy Trout and shortstop Johnny Lipon to the Boston Red Sox. The Tigers, in return, obtained first baseman Walter Dropo, infielders Johnny Pesky and Fred Hatfield, outfielder Don Lenhardt and pitcher Bill Wight.

The trade was one of the biggest in the majors in years. The principals were Kell and Evers for Detroit and Dropo, Pesky and Lenhardt for Boston.

All the players involved in the trade will report to their new clubs for tonight's games.

Kell, 29, has been with the Detroit club since 1946 and led the American league in batting in 1949. He is regarded as the best third baseman in the American league.

Evers, 31, laid up with an injury all season until last night, sparked the Tigers' pennant bid in 1950 with a .323 average.

Pesky at Short

Manager Red Rolfe said he intended to play Pesky at short and Hatfield at third, replacing Lipon and Kell. Lipon has been the Tigers' regular shortstop.

The deal gave the Tigers the hard-hittng first baseman they had sought all winter. As a rookie, Dropo smashed 34 home runs in 1950 for Boston, and batted .322. Dropo is 28.

The 37-year-old Trout had been a Tiger pitcher since 1939. The big righthander reached his peak n 1944 when he won 27 games. Although on the decline for the past few years, he pitched well in spots, and remained a top favorite of Tiger fans. Trout's record this year is 1-5.

Lipon, a 29-year-old right hand batter, joined the Tigers in 1946 after three years' military service. His top batting mark was .293 in 1950. This year he is batting .221.

Fred Hatfield

Walt Dropo

DON LENHARDT

JOHN PESKY

Pesky, 32, came to the majors with Boston in 1942. Playing third base and short, he compiled a .315 lifetime batting mark up to the start of this year.

Grand Slam

Lenhardt, who only last night won a ball game with a four-run homer in the 10th inning, is 29. He came up wth the St. Louis Browns in 1950, was traded to Chicago in '51 and joined the Sox this year. His lifetime mark is .270. He is a long ball hitter.

"That grand slammer almost stopped the deal," said General Manager Charley Gehringer of the Tigers. "But we completed all the arrangements last night."

Hatfield, with Boston in '50 and '51, has a lifetime mark of .274. He is 26 and a right hand batter. Most of his service has been at second base.

Wight, a 30-year-old left handed pitcher, has been with three American league clubs. He came up with the Yankees in 1947, spent three years in Chicago and went to Boston in a trade in '51. He has a lifetime earned run average of 4.06. His top year was 1949, when he won 15 and lost 13 for Chicago with an ERA of 3.31.

The trade followed the growing demand of Tiger fans for some action that might get their team out of last place in the American league standings. The Tigers, never a tail-end finisher, have been in the basement all season. Their current mark is 13 wins, 37 losses and a percentage of .325. They're 10½ games out of first place.

Harnies Win 1-0 In Pitching Duel

Escanaba's American League softball play last night was highlighted by a tight pitching duel and a free-hitting affair.

The powerful Harnischfeger club notched a tough 1-0 verdict over Phil & Ev's in the hurlers' battle and Power & Light downed the Dells 15-6 in the other game.

Phils & Ev's battled Harnischfeger in a scoreless game until the last of the seventh when Chuck Peltier led off with a single along the third base line and scored on apother single by pitcher John Pierpon.

Phil & Ev's had threatened in the top of the seventh with the bases loaded and none out. Bob Dufour made a sliding catch and turned it into a double play to duck the fire. Tom Bryack went the distance for the losers with Bittner catching.

Power & Light piled up its 15 runs on 10 hits and as many walks off Ken Dufresne. Don Paulin had two for four, Lloyd Lindstrom doubled and tripled, Ray O'Seen hit two for three and Bob Corriveau doubled with the bases loaded. Jack Courneene was on the winning mound with Wally Larson behind the plate.

U. P. Keg Star Beats Champion

MILWAUKEE — (AP)—A stubborn No. 4 pin was all that kept Cleveland's Steve Nagy from a perfect 300 game last night in the Master's invitational double elimination match tournament, which is being held in conjunction with the American Bowling Congress tournament.

Nagy got two big breaks in a string of 11 straight strikes. His hit in the eighth frame was right on the "nose" but the pins caved in. On his 11th ball, the Ohioan was high on the headpin but all the pins went down. Then on his final ball, he was just a bit strong in the pocket and the No. 4 stood up to give him 299.

He went on to add games of 225, 212 and 232 for 968 in beating Carl Richard, Parsons, Kans. In the feature wnners' bracket match. Richard had 785. Nagy's average for the four games was 242. His 299 was the highest single game shot in the two years of the Masters event.

There were two major upsets in the winners' bracket. Defending champion Lee Jouglard of Detroit was knocked into the losers' bracket by Charles Polich, Caspian, Mich., 827-694, and Willard Taylor, S. Charleston, W. Va., handed Joe Wilman, Chicago, his first defeat, 874-811.

June McMahon of Chicago, the national individual match game champion, defeated Billy Sixty, Milwaukee, 812-698. George Young, Detroit, beat Ed Nowicki, Milwaukee, 795-692. Andy Varipapa, Hempstead, N. Y., beat Tony Lindemann, Detroit, 833-830 in other top winners' bracket matches.

In regular ABC firing there was little in the shape of good scores, William Shaffalo and Fred Herrmann, Rochester, Pa., fashioned a 1,212 in doubles and Dominic Fassero, Taylorville, Ill., hit 637 in singles. The high regular team count was 2867 by Covered Wagon, Omaha, Nebr., on games of 826, 1,080 and 961. Anchorman Willis Borcher collected 659 sticks on 189-224 and 246.

Change Loss To Draw For Davey

NEW YORK—(AP)—Detroit's southpaw welterweight sensation Check Davey, former Michigan State College star, is still unbeaten.

New York State Athletic Commission chairman Bob Christenberry announced here yesterday that the disputed Davey-Carmen Basilio fight at Syracuse last Thursday will be written into the record books as a draw and Joe Palmer, the third man in the ring during the bout, is suspended indefinitely.

"The fight is declared a draw and Referee Joe Palmer is suspended indefinitely," Christenberry ruled.

"The very poor card" turned in by Palmer in scoring the bout was the reason for his suspension, Christenberry added.

Originally, Basilio was awarded a decision over the flashy Davey, who has victories over such opponents as former lightweight champion Ike Williams and the promising Chica Vejar. A half hour after the fight was over, however, deputy commissioner Thomas Graulty of Troy, N. Y., voided the verdict. He discovered that Palmer's card was incomplete and turned the matter over to Christenberry, the commission chairman.

Graulty said that Judge Harvey Smith gave the bout to Davey by a 5-4-1 decision and Judge Dick Fazio awarded each fighter five rounds but gave Basilio the nod on points, 6-5. Referee Palmer gave each fighter three rounds and declared four even with Basilio again getting the benefit of the points 8-6.

Because of cuts over both Davey's eyes which he received in the Basilio bout, his scheduled rematch with Vejar in Detroit, June 11, has been postponed until June 25.

Walcott Defends Heavy Crown Against Charles

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott will battle it out to hold the world's heavyweight championship Thursday night with a much heavier—and therefore perhaps slower—Ezzard Charles than the one from whom he wrested the crown last summer.

Pre-fight optimism in Walcott's training quarters brightened a notch with the mildly flabbergasting news that Charles tipped the scales in a perliminary weigh-in and examination yesterday at 196¾ pounds—over 14 pounds more than he carried in losing the title to Jersey Joe.

Dan Florio, Walcott's trainer, sized up the idea of a new and beefier Charles with the comment:

"Good News"

"That's the best news we've had since we began training. Charles will be so heavy, he's sure to be slowed up.

"And if he's slowed up, he's sure to get hit on that chin again. It looks like this is it."

Charles maintained the added weight is to his liking, and that he was too light and too fine against Walcott in the title go at Pittsburgh.

Walcott matched Charles' performance on the scales—but it looked better on the 38-year-old Cinderella of boxing than on the challenger, who is more than seven years Walcott's junior.

The champion carries three more pounds than he packed behind the paralyzing left hook which brought him a seventh-round knockout win over Charles. And he expects to scale 194 at the mid-day weighin Thursday.

Trim Lip

The mild commotion over Charles' weight eclipsed action by the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission to clear up some of the fight's loose ends—such as what to do with Charles' moustache.

Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's voluble skipper, wanted it shaved off—citing a provision in Pennsylvania's articles of ring warfare that says the contestants must be clean shaven.

The commission drove to a clean-cut decision on that score: Ezzard can keep his moustache, but he'll have to trim it. That was the same decision made for the last match.

It waived another provision: the state's mandatory eight-count on knockdowns.

And last but not least—the commission ruled there can be no draw decision.

GAMES SUNDAY

Escanaba at Daggett
Bark River at Felch
Foster City at Hermansville
Wilson at Stephenson
Wallace at Perronville

Stephenson's undefeated baseball team has a firm grip on first place in the Tri County baseball league standings this week—and a good chance to cement that hold next Sunday.

The Steves have scored three straight victories in Tri County play, defeating Perronville, Daggett and Bark River. Next Sunday the Stephenson team plays host to Wilson. Wilson has lost three straight.

Wallace suffered its first loss to Hermansville by a 5-3 score last week and dropped to a three way tie for third with Hermansville and Perronville. Perronville's 3-0 win over Wilson Sunday was its second straight victory.

Two teams boast .500 marks for the season. Both Escanaba and Felch have two wins and two losses to date. The wins for the Bears, defending league champions, came over Felch and Wilson while losses were suffered to Foster City and Bark River.

Manager Jack Beck's Bears, still shorthanded with a number of younger players unavailable, will travel to Daggett next Sunday. Daggett shares the cellar spot with Wilson, having lost all three starts.

Bark River and Foster City are one notch above the basement. Both have one win against a pair of losses. The Barks travel to Felch and Foster City is at Hermansville Sunday.

Most teams in the Tri County league have two rained out games to be made up in the first half which ends Sunday, June 29. Only made-up game reported to date was the Felch-Escanaba game played early Sunday afternoon. Escanaba copped a 5-3 decision which was protested on the field by the Felch manager. No word of the protest has been announced as yet by Roy Bagley, Tri County commissioner.

Sigfrid Tosses Three-Hit Game

GLADSTONE — A neat three-hitter and a weird 8-7 game provided fireworks in softball circles here last evening.

The three-hit performance was turned in by Sigfrid who led Stonington to a 4-0 win over Veneer Mill. Ray Wahowiaak was the loser.

In the first game the Merchants beat Ensign 8-7, with all the runs coming in two innings. The Merchants came to life first, scoring their eight runs in the fourth inning. Ensign coasted along until the top of the seventh, then woke up to ram seven runs across.

Olson and Wolf formed the Ensign battery, with LaPlant and Peterson going for the Merchants.

The new Kipling uniforms have been received and will be seen for the first time against the Lions tonight, weather permitting.

Packers Sign Georgia Runner

Bob North, former Georgia Tech backfielder has signed for the 1952 season with the Green Bay Packers. The announcement was made today by Head Coach Ronzani.

A fullback at Georgia Tech, he also runs at either left or right halfback. A determined runner that plugs for every inch, North was chosen all-Southeast Conference and all-Southern at Tech, picking up 663 yards in 145 attempts for four touchdowns in 1950. A crafty power runner, considered the best inside runner in Southeast Conference. Top ground gainer in 1950 North-South game.

He was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles in 1951 and had a short tryout early in the 1951 campaign. Bob is anxious to return to pro competition again this year.

North stands five feet 10 inches, weighs 180 pounds, and is 23 years old. He is married, has one son and makes his home in Atlanta, Georgia.

Penn Slates Big Name Grid Foes

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—The University of Pennsylvania will all but forsake the Ivy League for big name football opponents across the nation and one of the toughest schedules in its history next year.

The 1953 card, announced yesterday:

Vanderbilt, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Michigan, Army, Navy, Cornell, California and Penn State.

Penn didn't say in what order the games will be played. Eight of the nine will be home tilts.

Only one Ivy League opponent—Cornell—is in the unprecedented lineup. But Penn Athletic Director Fran Murray insisted it's no indication that Penn is bolting the league.

The schedule was announced reluctantly after a story naming the opponents appeared in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, which reported:

"Never in the history of modern Penn football has the schedule included so many of the top names in the country. Not in more than 20 years has there been only one Ivy League opponent."

A few hours later, Murray announced:

"The premature but accurate speculation with reference to Penn's 1953 varsity football schedule is most unfortunate because of the understandings with our opponents regarding such announcements.

Rumors circulated last year that Ivy athletic directors were going to blacklist Penn because of the Red and Blue tendency to go "big time." The rumors were denied, then answered when Ivy college presidents agreed to play one another at least once every five years. This was adopted when the presidents banned spring football practice among the eight schools.

Ask Boys To Sign Up For City Rec Leagues

One more outlet for young Escanaba baseball talent was opened today by an announcement by Art Petersen, city recreation director.

The annual city recreation baseball leagues are being formed and Petersen stated that all youngsters between the ages of 8 and 16 will be able to sign up starting Thursday at Club 314.

The recreation leagues are three in number. The Midget League is for boys 8-9-10, the Juvenile League for boys 11-12-13 and the Junior League for 14-15-16 year-olds.

The recreation league will take care of all the youngsters who do not participate in League or Pony League, Petersen said.

There is plenty of room for all the youngsters in Escanaba and we want every boy to sign up, regardless of age or ability," the recreation director said. "All boys who are interested will be placed on a team someplace."

Youngsters will be allowed to sign up this week and next week for the three leagues which will probably begin regular play on Monday, June 23.

National Open Golf Field Pared Down, Haas Standout

NEW YORK—(AP)—A total of 146 of the East's leading professionals and amateurs will vie for a dozen places at Montclair, N. J., tomorrow to complete the field for the National Open Golf tournament.

The record entry list of 1,697 was reduced to 150 with scattered sectional 36-hole trials yesterday in which Fred Haas, the gangling New Orleans pro, was the standout performer as an imposing list of big name performers failed to make the grade.

The championship, the blue ribbon event of American golf, will be contested over the Northwood Country Club in Dallas June 12-14 with Ben Hogan the defending champion. Hogan and 28 others— champions, ex-champions and high 1951 finishers—didn't have to qualify.

Heavy Rain

The Montclair, N. J., tests originally were scheduled yesterday along with 26 others but were postponed because of heavy weekend rains. Claude Harmon, the former masters champion, is among those seeking berths, together with the various Turnesa Brothers, amateur Frank Stranahan and ex-pro titlist Vic Ghezzi to name a few.

Haas, son of a well-known Southern pro, left no doubt about his qualifications as he outshot a star-spangled field at St. Louis and rang up the nation's best qualifying score with 69-64—133, nine under par for the Bellerieve Country Club course.

Ben Hogan

Two amateurs, Billy Campbell of Huntington, West, Va., and W. A. (Dub) Pagan of West Palm Beach, Fla., shared second place with a brace of young pros, Dow Finsterwald of Athens, Ohio, and Pat Abbott of Memphis, at 136.

Heavy Casualties

But casualties ran heavy, particularly at St. Louis where many of the nation's leading barnstormers had gathered for last week-end's Western Open.

Among those who didn't make the grade there were Argentine Champion Roberto DeVicenzo, Joe Kirkwood Jr., Jerry Barber, Johnny Palmer, Toney Penna and Bob Toski.

The 19 successful participants at St. Louis of the 67 who tried included Jack Burke of Houston, the year's leading money winner; Jim Ferrier, Dutch Harrison, Ed Furgol, Marty Furgol and Tom Bolt.

Ellsworth Vines, former world tennis champion from Hollywood, Fla., earned only an alternate's berth at Glendale, Calif. Charlie Coe, former U. S. amateur king, missed out at Tulsa, Okla.

Chandler Harper, 1950 PGA champion, qualified at Baltimore. Sam Urzetta, 1950 U. S. amateur titlist, came through at Rochester, N. Y., his home town. The tournament's youngest entrant, Don Bisplinghoff, 17, of Orlando, Fla., shot a 70-73—143 at West Palm Beach to qualify

Stork Gives Sauer Boost

CHICAGO—(AP)—Hank Sauer is a kindly, home-loving, church-going man with an Abe Lincoln build.

It is not surprising, therefore, that such a thing as the stork has had a lot to do with assisting the unassuming Chicago Cub outfielder to the National League lead in:

1. Hitting, with .335. (Tied with Whitey Lockman of New York).
2. Number of hits, with 54.
3. Homers, with 11.
4. Runs-batted-in, with 47.

This is the fastest start Sauer has made since his first full season in the majors with the Cincinnati Reds in 1948. He came to the Cubs in June, 1949.

Even as a late starter, hitting his stride in August and September, Hank has been a feared slugger with 35, 31, 32 and 30 home runs in successive seasons. Last year he batted .263 and drove in 89 runs. He had 103 RBI's in 1950.

What's the reason for such a blazing early pace?

Nine months ago Hank who is 33, became the beaming parent of pert blue-eyed Betty Lorraine, his and Mrs. Sauer's first child in 12 years of marriage.

"It was a great blessing for the Sauer family," explained Cub Manager Phil Cavarretta. "The state of Mrs. Sauer's health has had Hank worried at times in the past and he always tightened up when that happened. This is the first season he has started off relaxed. I've noticed a big change in him since his daughter arrived."

Escanaba Golfers Beat Hogan---With Regular Handicap

Sixty members of Escanaba Golf Club took part in the "beat Harry Hogan" tourney over Memorial Day weekend with Jim Ward Jr., Jack Root, Augie Gafner, Charles Gessner and Stack Smith winning by selecting their "bogie" between 35 and 40 strokes.

Many of the club's golfers beat Hogan who fired a 38 without handicap. All golfers were allowed their full handicap against the former club champion.

Mrs. Harry Bourke Jr. and Jim Fitzharris teamed up to win the two-ball mixed foursomes with a combined low score of 46. Runners-up were Mrs. Lillian LaFave and Hilmer Johnson with a 56.

Reynolds Has Top ERA Mark Of 1.35

NEW YORK — (AP) — Allie Reynolds, whose clutch hurling is keeping the New York Yankees within striking distance of their fourth straight American league pennant, is the leading earned run pitcher in the major leagues.

Averages released today by the Associated Press disclosed that Reynolds has allowed only 12 earned runs in 80 innings for a 1.35 average.

In the National league, Sal Maglie of the New York Giants is still the most effective moundsman, although last night St. Louis handed him his first defeat of the season. Maglie, a nine-game winner, has surrendered 14 earned runs in 86 innings for a 1.47 mark.

Joe Dobson, Chicago White Sox' veteran righthander, has given up only 13 untainted tallies in 69 innings for a fourth-place 1.70 mark. Lefthander Ted Gray, a five-game winner with the last-place Detroit Tigers, is next in line with a 2.16 era.

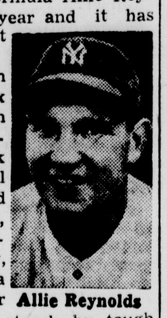

Maglie Loses First Game

Reynolds Hurls Mound Gem

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Apparently there is one way to overcome the jinx of pitching a no-hitter—just pitch two of them.

That is the formula Allie Reynolds used last year and it has proven most successful.

Allie Reynolds

Unlike such hurlers as Rex Barney, Don Black, Bill McCahan, Dick Fowler, Ewell Blackwell and Cliff Chambers, who either suffered an injury, developed a lame arm or otherwise were struck by tough luck after pitching a no-hit, no-run game during the last six years, Reynolds has been more effective than ever since his two masterpieces of 1951.

Best Performance

The New York Yankee righthander turned in his best performance of the season yesterday, blanking the Cleveland Indians, 2-0. The victory moved the world champions into the first division.

Allie, a part Creek Indian himself, made eight Redskins bite the dust via strikeouts. He surrendered only four hits for his ninth straight complete game. The 33 year old righthander notched his fifth victory in a row and his sixth against three losses as he reduced his earned run percentage to a spectacular 1.35.

The defeat dropped the Indians out of the league lead as the Boston Red Sox whipped the Chicago White Sox, 6-2, to take over first place by four percentage points.

Another great righthander, Sal Maglie of the New York Giants, went down to his first defeat of the season. The St. Louis Cardinals nipped the National League titleholders, 5-4, to snap Maglie's nine-game winning streak.

Giants Still Out

The triumph, St. Louis' third straight over the Giants, boosted the Redbirds into the first division by a half game over the Cincinnati Reds, who bowed to Boston's Braves, 4-1. The defeat left the Giants still one game behind the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers, who were beaten, 6-1, by the surprising Chicago Cubs.

Philadelphia's rebounding Athletics handed Ned Garver his sixth straight loss. They shaded St. Louis, 2-1, to move past the Browns into sixth place. Rookie Harry Byrd spaced 10 hits for his second triumph. Garver yielded four of the A's five hits but two of them were homers by Eddie Joost and Gus Zernial to account for all of Philadelphia's runs.

Lemon Victim

Mickey Vernon and Frank Campos batted in two runs apiece as Washington defeated the Detroit Tigers, 5-2, to move within a game of first place in the American league.

Bob Lemon, who has been pitching in tough luck all season, was victim of Reynolds' brilliant effort. Lemon, like Reynolds, also yielded only four hits but wildness caused his downfall.

Don Lenhardt blasted a grand slam homer in the bottom of the tenth off Ken Holcombe to bring victory to the Red Sox and righthander Willard Nixon.

Solly Hemus singled home two runs in a three-run sixth inning to enable the Cards to come from behind a 4-2 deficit.

The bout will open the International Boxing Club's summer series of 14 matches to be televsed and broadcast nationally from Chicago Stadium. A sparce ringside gathering of 4,000 is predicted.

Tigers Bow To Nats, To Face A's Tonight

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The cellar-dwelling Detroit Tigers moved into town today to clash with the Athletics in a night game tonight—the first of a three-game series.

Hoot Evers

Detroit Manager Red Rolfe planned to send Virgil Trucks, who has a two and four season record, to the mound to face the A's.

About the only good thing that came out of yesterday's game, in which the Washington Senators handed Detroit a 5-2 loss, was the first appearance of Hoot Evers at the plate this year. Evers came in to pinchhit for Art Houtteman in the eighth inning and promptly beat out a hit off Nat first baseman Mickey Vernon's glove.

The Cuban from Washington, Conrado Marrero, spread out nine Tiger hits with his jug-handle curves and slow stuff to gain his third victory over Detroit this year and put his team within one game of the league lead.

It was Houtteman's seventh loss of the 1952 campaign against only three victories.

Vic Wertz figured in both Detroit runs. He scored Don Kolloway with a hit in the first inning and scored in the ninth on Pat Mullin's fly after hitting a 438-foot triple against the centerfied wall.

Tells Why Tigers Took On Veteran Player John Hopp

By HARRY STAPLER

DETROIT — (AP)—Why did the last place Detroit Tigers sign an oldster like first baseman Johnny Hopp right at the time Tiger fans are hollering for fresh young faces and speedy legs?

The answer came from Hopp and General Manager Charlie Gehringer after the 35-year-old former New York Yankee signed yesterday here at Briggs Stadium. Hopp will report in time for tonight's game in Philadelphia.

From Gehringer's viewpoint Hopp will serve a much better pinchhitter than rookie George Lerchen—the outfielder they sold to Buffalo yesterday to make room for Hopp.

Aid Defense

Also, Hopp's fielding skill will strengthen the club defensively at first base, Gehringer and Manager Red Rolfe feel. They aren't pleased with Don Kolloway's recent costly misplays at first.

"We don't expect Hopp to be able to play in every game. But he'll certainly help our bench," said Charlie.

Hopp has been a free agent since cast loose by the New York Yankees May 22. Gehringer said the Tigers agreed to pick up the remaining part of his contract, which called for an estimated $15,000 this season.

As Johnny was trying on a Tiger uniform just after the 15-minute conference, he explained why he thought the Tigers signed him and how he could help.

"Just because I'm 35, don't think I'm slow and washed up. I can run fast and I'm a good baserunner (the Yankees used him as a pinch-runner).

"I keep in good shape. I always have. I'm the aggressive type (he played most of his 14-year major league career with the St. Louis Cardinals' peppery National League teams).

"I'll hit too. I did when I played regularly."

The Tigers can vouch for that. Hopp helped knock them out of the pennant with a .333 batting spurt in 19 games after he was acquired Sept. 9, 1950, by the Yankees from the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League in a surprise waiver deal.

Hopp has a .298 major league batting average for 14 seasons, but slipped to .206 last year while playing infrequently. He said he had four singles in about 20 trips this year.

Steered To Tigers

"Casey Stengel (of the Yankees) told me they had to turn me loose because Johnny Mize could hit a long ball and Joe Collins was young, and he couldn't go with three first basemen," Hopp said. "He said he didn't want to give me up.

"That night before I left for home (Hastings, Nebr.) I was with some of the old Yankees, Allie Reynolds, Lopat and others. They kept telling me 'sign with the Tigers, sign with the Tigers.'

"So I turned down 15 other offers. I don't expect to play like I did when I was 20, but I still can play a lot of baseball for the Tigers. I've recovered fully from that pulled muscle that slowed me down a couple of weeks ago."

Hopp's greatest year was 1944, when he hit .336 and played in his third straight world series wth the Cardinals.

You Have To Lose Sometime---Maglie

ST. LOUIS — (AP)—"You've got to lose one sooner or later," was Sal Maglie's comment as his time came.

Despite the philosophy, it was a bitter thing for the New York Giants' righthander to face his first defeat of the season, after nine triumphs, 5-4, at the hands of the St. Louis Cardinals last night.

Sal Maglie

Counting three victories at the end of last year, Maglie was trying for his 13th consecutive success.

He was lifted for a pinchbatter in the seventh frame after the Redbirds had pulled in front.

Sitting dejectedly in the locker room, the 36-year-old hurler tried to recall what had gone wrong.

"My control was off a little," he said. "If I'd had my control, I'd have been all right, but I was in trouble every inning."

It was St. Louis which chased him from the only other ball game he couldn't complete this year.

Brewers Continue To Post Victories

(By The Associated Press)

The Milwaukee Brewers, still under the direction of General Manager Red Smith, former Chicago Cub scout, made it three straight over the Columbus Red Birds Monday night to boost their American Association lead to 1½ games over Kansas City.

Kansas City absorbed its first shutout of the season as lanky Hank Behrman, Toledo righthander, spun a five-hitter for a 6-0 whitewashing job. It was his fourth win against five losses.

Third-place Louisville drew up to within one-half game of the Blues by downing Minneapolis 3-2 in 10 innings.

CALCULATED DESTRUCTION — More than four months of time, $200,000 in money, and the efforts of a 60-man crew have been necessary to effect this scene of wartime destruction at Olney, Md. Designed to serve as a training ground for Civil Defense workers, it embodies most demolition problems that might be met after an air raid.

School Curriculum Receives Criticism

TEL AVIV—(AP)—Israel children are being somewhat overfed with music and undernourished with regard to painting and drawing, according to British poet Stephen Spender, who recently visited many Israel schools.

He was somewhat critical of the general over-emphasis on music and the emotional release provided by it. Drawing and painting are a more constructive form of self-expression, he said.

Malaria mosquitoes scourged the beautiful Mediterranean island of Cyprus from the dawn of history, but modern insecticides in the years since World War II have completely eliminated the the disease.

Fishermen Practice Conservation, Rouman Tells Kiwanis Club

Good fishermen today should have as their aim the conservation of their sport for the future rather than the filling of a creel, Escanaba Kiwanis club members were told Monday by Jim Rouman, high school faculty member and veteran trout fisherman.

"Fishing has become a sporting proposition," Rouman said, "and we are concerned now with building up this field of recreation for the future rather than trying to catch the limit every time we go fishing. We must look at the conservation end of our sport rather than the objective of taking fish by the basketfull."

Rouman recommended fishing as a healthful, happy sport for youngsters, and urged that fishermen take the young people along on fishing trips to introduce them to a recreation which will give worlds of future enjoyment.

Various samples of gear used by the trout fishermen were demonstrated by the speaker in the course of his talk. Thaxter Shaw was program chairman.
